FORNEY "TO TELL," GETS SIX MONTHS

Today

Most Important Flight.
Governor Smith's Hat.
Mongrel Success.
The Permanent 18th.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928)

TO THIS country the most important flight thus far made is Art Goebel's non-stop trip from Los Angeles on the Pacific to Long Island on the Atlantic. Goebel made the flight in less than 19 hours, reducing the record by eight hours.

WITH the Panama Canal we no longer send fleets around South America. Battleships go from New York through the Panama Canal to San Francisco, or vice versa, in less than two weeks.

The battleship is now a joke on which our country spends millions because those that make the battleships need the money.

The real defense and attack, as British experiments have proved, is the airship.

We know now that we could bring an air fleet from the Pacific to the Atlantic, or vice versa, for defense or attack within 24 hours.

WHEN Gov. Smith speaks to a radio audience of 70,000,000 at Albany tomorrow night, the city will be ornamented with flags and thousands of Smith admirers will be decorated with derby hats.

Derby hat wearers will notice that it is not Gov. Smith's "derby" that is responsible for his rise in the world.

That came from the mental machinery UNDER the hat. If it were as easy to imitate the head as to imitate the hat, the world would move rapidly.

THE Gov. Smith-Rev. Dr. Straton debate is off. Dr. Straton says he will not let Gov. Smith reply to him in his Baptist Church, where the Straton charges were made. Gov. Smith says, in that case, he won't notice Dr. Straton at all. The decision is wise. If you debate with a clergyman and win, YOU LOSE.

PROF. M'KENZIE, of Washington University, St. Louis, says, "The human animal today is a mongrel. He is the hereditary product of a wide variety of racial types. The sex impulse is responsible."

Fondness for travel, war, and stealing of wives by young men opposed to inbreeding, are also responsible.

PROF. M'KENZIE says truly, "Peoples as far apart as Orientals and Caucasians should not intermarry."

Otherwise the more mixed the breed the better. Greece was the most mixed race in the days of Pericles, Rome the most mixed in Caesar's time, France most mixed in the reign of Louis XIV. England is the most mixed race today, with the exception of the United States. And Japan is the most thoroughly mixed race of Asia. The right kind of mongrel wins.

DR. NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER, head of Columbia College and a learned man, says, "The Eighteenth Amendment must go."

Dr. Butler knows that 36 states would be required to eliminate or modify the Eighteenth Amendment. You couldn't get 36 or 26 states to vote for a change.

A PRESIDENT, opposed to prohibition, might, it is said, name Supreme Court judges to eliminate the Eighteenth Amendment along lines of the Dred Scott decision.

They might declare the amendment subversive of the Constitution. They might, but they WOULDN'T.

A "DAILY MAIL" dispatch from Hankow, China, reports that Monsignor Froewise, Catholic priest, an Austrian, 64 years old, was captured by Chinese brigands and killed by torture.

This report, horrible in this age, was only too common on the North American continent in the days of Father Marquette and earlier missionaries.

Many were the Catholic missionaries tortured by savages in those early days.

CLERGYMEN of the Episcopal church were asked, "Is prohibition a success in your locality?" Five hundred and one answered "Yes." One thousand three hundred and four answered "No."

Six hundred and forty-three think the prohibition law the best solution of the problem. One thousand six hundred and one said "No." One thousand three hundred and eighty-nine said the Volstead act should be modified. Six hundred and seventy-three said "No."

They were evenly divided on repealing the Eighteenth Amendment.

"AND the Lord said unto Cain, where is Abel, thy brother? And he said, I know not; am I my brother's keeper?" This after Cain had killed his brother.

The process was reversed in New York yesterday. Sam Goldenberg, out of work for six months, vainly begged his brother, Herman, for help. Herman refused and Sam shot him.

The brother shot by Goldenberg may recover. He says of Sam, "I regret to say he is my mother's son." The mother would regret that one of her sons had refused to help the other.

PADLOCKS DEMANDED FOR 77 PLACES

In defiance of an alleged plot on the part of Republican ward leaders to oust him as head of the prohibition forces in the Pittsburgh district, Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington, in Federal Court, today filed 77 padlock injunction suits against proprietors of saloons, hotels, restaurants, road houses, confectionery stores and private residences.

It is the largest number of padlock suits filed at one time in the history of the local court and, according to Administrator Pennington, the largest single batch ever filed in any court since the prohibition law went into effect. Judge Schoonmaker set October 15 as the date for a hearing.

The suits were filed before Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker. Under the preliminary injunctions the defendants were enjoined from permitting further violations pending final padlock hearings. The suits today do not place padlocks on the properties involved.

Saloons, hotels or stores in every section of the city are included in the 33 suits filed against persons in the city.

Twenty-three are against McKeesporters; five in Clairton; four in Glassport, and three in Hays.

Other alleged violators are in West Elizabeth, Dorseyville, Large, Braddock, McKees Rocks and Dravosburg.

Kleman's Inn, 201 Collins avenue, East Liberty, is among the well-known places mentioned in the proceedings. John P. Kleman, alleged proprietor and owner of the property, and Antol Koller are cited in the suit.

In McKeesport notable places are Port Vue, Park and Columbia hotels. The Twelve Mile House, Dorseyville, and Dimpfl's Inn, R. F. D. No. 5, Pittsburgh, are among the

SENTENCE FIRST IN LIQUOR RING

A. W. Forney, alleged slot machine "racketeer," the first of the 167 indicted in the Allegheny county "booze ring" to appear in Federal Court, was shown leniency by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker today on his promise to tell "all he knows" of the inner workings of the ring.

Forney, who, it is alleged, controlled all slot machines in Allegheny county, was sentenced to serve six months in the Allegheny county jail and to pay a fine of $3,000—$1,000 for each of the three indictments in which he was charged with conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act.

Forney, through his attorney, Hyman D. Hirsh, pleaded no defense to the three indictments. The attorney notified Judge Schoonmaker and United States Attorney John D. Meyer, who came into court with his assistant, Ralph H. Smith, that Forney was ready to tell "everything" in connection with the inner workings of the county rum ring.

"The defendant's conscience has troubled him so since he was indicted," Attorney Hirsh declared, "that he cannot sleep. He wishes to free his mind of the load and to aid the federal authorities in any way within his power to clear up the workings of the ring."

Included among others indicted by the federal grand jury are high police officials and political leaders.

Risks Life In Fire to Save Dog

Risking her life to save her dog, "Flossie," Mrs. Marie Gratz, 48, of 1300 East street, was badly burned on the face and hands today when she rushed into the blazing kitchen of her home and rescued the animal.

Mrs. Gratz was in the backyard hanging out clothes when an oil stove in the kitchen exploded. She ran into the kitchen, untied "Flossie" and carried the dog to safety. She was taken to the Allegheny General Hospital. Firemen extinguished the blaze.

SMITH'S LEAD HERE 125 AS RURAL VOTE GROWS

Only 125 votes separate Hoover and Smith in the Pennsylvania straw vote canvass being gathered by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Hoover, 1,715; Smith, 1,840.

And still the rural vote swings heavily to Hoover, yesterday's figures showing the Republican candidate getting 100 ballots against Smith's 69 from out-of-town communities. Including the city's totals, Hoover got 112 votes to Smith's 85.

In the grand totals, it was shown that those who replied to the straw vote canvass gave Coolidge nearly three times as many votes in 1924 as were given to the other two important candidates, Davis and La Follette. La Follette polled 591 votes, Davis only 235, while Coolidge received 2,216.

Women are showing a keen interest in the election this year, as is manifest in the straw vote. Women cast 854 votes for Hoover, compared with 861 cast for him by men. Smith's 1,840 votes came from 1,007 men and 833 women. Coolidge's vote four years ago showed more cast by women than by men, 1,111 to 1,105.

The considerable La Follette vote has gone, in the major part, to Smith, but there is a large shift of party allegiance to Smith from the Republican ranks. This is noticeable, particularly in the city vote, which shows a total of 1,520 for Smith and 1,254 for Hoover.

Voters in every section of the state are being requested to express their preference as between the two candidates, and the response is satisfactory and spirited.

No corner of the community is too remote to be included in the canvass, and the result of this state-wide straw vote, a part of the national poll being taken by the Hearst newspapers, is expected to be a definite indication of public sentiment to be expressed at the polls in November.

Have You Seen This Automobile?

THE murderer of Dr. Harry A. Dapper, of Carrick, is believed to be fleeing in the doctor's automobile—a dark blue Nash sedan, 1928 model, bearing Pennsylvania license plates 22-037.

If you see this automobile, immediately telephone ATlantic 4900, ask for the county detectives and give them the information—or telephone GRant 6500, the Sun Telegraph, and ask for the city editor.

Slain Carrick Physician -:- Found on Lonely Road

MURDER SCENE

This pictures the spot in the Lebanon Church road where last night a stranger shot Dr. Harry A. Dapper, of Carrick, and, failing at shooting Dapper's father, drove away in the physician's auto. The body was thrown to the wayside (see cross) and the shots attracted John Smith (above), a neighbor. (Inset shows Dr. Dapper).

CRIES FOR DRINK

The victim's father, Henry J. Dapper, himself weakened in grappling with the murderer, then dragged the body to the Lebanon Church steps, where another neighbor, Eli Hallam (above), found the physician gasping his last. "Get me a drink," the doctor pleaded, Hallam said.

KIN SHOOTS WOMAN AND SELF

Shot in the mouth, and her vocal chords paralyzed, Mrs. Josephine Witkowski, 29, lay beside her year-old baby for six hours today. The child's cries led to her discovery and removal to McKeesport Hospital. In the same room of the house at 69 Ross stret, North Versailles township, Stanley Witkowski, 40, her brother-in-law, lay dead with a bullet wound in his head.

The shooting, police learned, occurred at 3 o'clock this morning, and it was not until 9 that the cries of the baby attracted neighbors. Then Mrs. Witkowski was taken to the hospital and Witkowski's body was sent to an undertaking establishment. Mrs. Witkowski wrote on a pad at the hospital that her brother-in-law had shot her.

The cause of the shooting has not been determined. Mrs. Witkowski's husband is working in West Virginia.

Examination at the hospital revealed that the bullet had drilled a hole through Mrs. Witkowski's lip, knocked out two teeth and buried itself in the root of her tongue.

Bankrupt Trustee in Contempt

Elliott Frederick, trustee in bankruptcy in many cases in this district, today was adjudged in contempt of court by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker. Bail was fixed at $3,000 and he was directed to appear September 14 for sentence.

On August 2 Judge Schoonmaker signed nine orders directing Frederick to show cause why he should not be declared in contempt of court for alleged failure to make final and supplementary reports in bankruptcy cases to Watson B. Adair, referee in bankruptcy.

A hearing was scheduled for August 14 and postponed until today. Attorney Sidney Watts, appearing for Frederick, told the court that on account of a number of attorneys being out of town, Elliott could not file complete reports at this time.

Carrick Doctor's Murder Baffles

While his young widow hung weeping on his casket, county detectives today stood baffled at the mystery shrouding the murder Monday night of Dr. Harry A. Dapper, 27, 1211 Brownsville road. Dr. Dapper died early today from a shot through the groin, inflicted as he, his father and the slayer were leaving an auto near the Lebanon Church road, in Mifflin township.

While police in every direction were asked to look out for a foreigner about 35, weighing 160 pounds and six feet in height, the detectives sought by repeated questioning to learn from the dead man's father, Henry J. Dapper, vice president, Fort Pitt Brewing Company, why his son feared to go out lonely Lebanon Church road with the stranger who had called him to minister to "a sick wife."

The elder Drapper, who grappled with the murderer for possession of the gun until he was knocked unconscious with a blackjack, still lay in serious condition in his home in Clifton boulevard.

County Detectives James T. Reddington and Patrick Trainer hope to learn from the elder Dapper the specific fears which impelled the young physician to ask his father to accompany him "to a house on Lebanon Church road near Bettis Field."

DIES SPEECHLESS

Dr. Dapper's death occurred in Homestead Hospital at 6:40 a. m. today, without him giving detectives any definite statement as to why the stranger had deliberately planned his murder.

The slaying occurred in a lonely spot off the Lebanon Church road near Bettis Field. The stranger called at Dr. Dapper's office shortly before 9 o'clock with a request for the physician to accompany him to the beside of his "dying wife."

Dr. Dapper was detained a few minutes in the office while the stranger waited in the ante-room. The young physician either became suspicious of the strange man or he dreaded the lonely ride back alone, and he sought the company of a neighbor. The neighbor was not at home, so Dr. Dapper called his father, who lives a short distance away at 18 Clifton boulevard.

PICKED UP FATHER

Dr. Dapper and the stranger started out, picking up the elder Dapper en route. They rode for some time in silence, the stranger finally breaking in with "There are only a few doctors who would make a long trip like this without first getting paid!"

The journey to the site of ancient Lebanon Presbyterian Church was made by the three men in Dr. Dapper's own machine, a dark blue Nash sedan bearing Pennsylvania license plates 22-037.

When the machine reached the gravel road which turns off Lebanon road at the church, the stranger pointed to a house up on the hill. They drove 100 yards from the Lebanon road where the stranger told them to stop.

"We'll have to walk the rest of the way," he said.

The physician stopped the motor. His father opened the rear door

GREENLAND ESKIMOS HUNT HASSELL

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Eskimos, sweeping along the western coast of Greenland in Davis Strait in their kaiaks, or hunting canovies, today were searching for Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, missing American fliers.

Parties of Arctic hunters were exploring the fiords between Cape Farewell and Holstenborg in the hope that the fliers may have come down somewhere in that vicinity. Holstenborg is near Mt. Evans, goal of the airmen on their hop from Cochrane, Ont.

Acting on the request of the American legation to assist in the search for the Americans, the Greenland trading ships are keeping a sharp lookout for the airplane Greater Rockford and its crew of two.

U. S. ORDERS SEARCH

MT. EVANS, Greenland, Aug. 21.—Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, missing American airmen lost while attempting a North Atlantic flight from Canada to Greenland, were more than two days overdue this morning and no trace of them had been found.

The failure of radio stations to pick up any trace of the missing airmen increased fears that disaster had overtaken their plane at sea.

The United States Coast Guard cutter Marion, operating in the Hudson Strait, near the projected route of the flight, was instructed to aid in the search for the missing men.

Canadian, Greenland and Danish fishing boats have joined the search at the request of the United States government.

The Canadian government, it is understood here, has requested trappers in the northeastern wilderness to keep an extra sharp watch for traces of the missing plane.

CHANCES CALLED SLIM

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The crew of the Coast Guard Cutter Marion, searching off Northern Labrador for the missing airplane Greater Rockford and its two occupants, fears that the aviators have perished if they were forced down off that bleak coast. The following message was received from the cutter at coast guard headquarters here shortly before midnight:

"Taking stations on line of Hassel's flight, but no signs of him.

SMITH RAPS WHITE, STRATON AND G. O. P.

DEFENDS RECORD IN HOT REPLY

By RAYMOND I. BORST,
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 21.—Convinced that he has completely shattered William Allen White's charges that he is morally unfit to be the President of the United States, Gov. Al Smith today anxiously looked forward to his notification ceremony, set for 7 o'clock tomorrow night, when he will formally launch his campaign for the presidency.

Declaring that his record "as an opponent of immorality is fixed and secured," the Democratic nominee, in a formal statement, charged that White and the Republican National Committee had pursued a "cowardly" course in attempting to picture him as a friend of the saloon, gambling and prostitution.

STRATON NOT NAMED

While the Governor did not mention the Rev. John Roach Straton by name, he told friends that his reply to White also could be taken as an answer to the New York City clergyman's charge that he was the "deadliest foe in America today to moral progress." In answering White the nominee served notice on his moral critics, as well as his Republican opponents, that he did not propose to have the issues of the coming campaign befogged by a discussion of how he voted on legislation when he was a member of State Assembly 20 years ago.

"I am glad to have this matter taken out of the whisper stage and put into the open; once and for all I shall meet it now," the Governor declared. "I regard it as purely political, and when the campaign begins I do not propose to have the issues of that campaign befogged by controversy over irrelevent things, such as the discussion of my votes as a legislator some 20 or more years ago."

White charged that Smith, when a member of the Legislature, always voted to protect the saloon, gambling and vice. Before he sailed for Europe recently the Kansas editor retracted that part of his charge relating to gambling and vice. Subsequently, however, through Henry J. Allen, publicity director of the Republican National Committee, he withdrew the retraction about gambling and prostitution.

THANKED BY REFORMER

"My record as an opponent of immorality is fixed and secure," Smith wrote in reply to White. "Publicly and by many letters in my possession, the late Rev. Canon John P. Peters, when chairman of the Committee of Fourteen, the leading anti-vice society of New York, repeatedly thanked me for my co-operation with that organization. No one in all of the 25 years of my public life has ever dared to make the vile suggestions which emanated from Mr. White, with the approval of Henry J. Allen, publicity director of the Republican National Committee."

Then the Governor trained his guns directly upon the Republican national committee. He said:

"What a cowardly course the Republican national committee pursued. It issued a slanderous statement through its official publicity bureau and then after its general publication in the [illegible]s, attempted to evade re[illegible]sibility by the childish [illegible]n that it had been given [illegible] by accident. That is not [illegible] play."

The Governor asserted he was confident that the people of New York approved his legislative record or they would not have elected him four times to the governorship, something that has never been done before in the state's history. He added:

EXPEDIENCY BILL

"I cannot, however, let go unchallenged the political attempt to tear down my character and reputation by seeking to align me on the side of opposition to the regulation of the liquor traffic and in favor of gambling and prostitution."

White's charge that Smith's record showed him to be a friend of prostitution drew his sharpest fire. He said this charge was based upon a bill which would have prevented the renting of a hotel room twice in one night. After pointing out that this bill, which he voted against, was first defeated and then later passed for "political expediency" by the Republican Legislature, the Governor wrote:

"On this bill and this single bill alone, William Allen White would have my wife, my children and my friends believe that in my long public career I was a friend of public prostitution."

ESKIMOS HUNT HASSELL

Will make some sort of search, but if he is down on the water chances of rescue are infinitesimally small. No ship anywhere around here. We had a hard northwest storm Sunday and if he landed on the water it would have been impossible to last even a few hours."

ROCKFORD STILL HOPES

ROCKFORD, Ill., Aug. 21.—Rockford citizens today took new hope for the ultimate rescue of Aviators Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, lost en route to Sweden, when it was learned a fleet of Canadian planes had been ordered out from Fort Burwell to search the course taken by the missing Greater Rockford monoplane.

The searching planes were ordered out last night by A. J. Wilson, head of the civil aviation branch of the Canadian department of national defense, on telephonic request of the Rockford Chamber of Commerce.

Fort Burwell is 300 miles from Davis Straits, the region from which the adventurous Rockford fliers were last heard. The fliers had agreed that in the event of trouble near the straits, they would turn back and attempt to reach Fort Burwell.

The Rockford Chamber of Commerce also cabled the Danish government asking that its ships in the vicinity of Greenland and Labrador instruct their operators to listen constantly for radio news of the aviators.

Throughout the city of Rockford there is only one topic of conversation.

"Hassell and Cramer!"

"Are they safe?"

Every family with a radio listened through the night for word of the fliers.

PEDDLER HELD IN ATTACK

David Zimmerman, notions and novelties peddler, is deaf and dumb. When housewives don't buy his wares he gets "sore," police say.

Monday Mrs. Patrick McDonough, 70, 1220 Metropolitan street, North Side, ordered him from the house. "He ran out into the yard, picked up a board and, pushing open the door, beat her on the head with it," a daughter, Mrs. Lenore Hannigan, 819 Melrose avenue, North Side, testified before Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court today.

When Mrs. Hannigan interceded Zimmerman attacked her and when Patrick McDonough, 71, her father, ran to their aid, he too was struck over the head, it was testified.

Zimmerman was held on an assault and battery charge.

MURDER IS PUZZLE

and started to alight. He heard a muffled shot. Then his son cried:

"I'm shot!"

The elder Dapper grappled with the assailant in an attempt to take the gun from his grasp. The stranger pulled a blackjack from his pocket and struck him on the head.

He then re-entered the car and fled.

WALLET MISSING

When he awakened 15 minutes later he found his son lying fatally wounded, unable to speak. He dragged him to the walk of the church. Then Eli Hallam, who lives nearby, roused by the father's calls for help, found them they were rushed to the hospital.

Detectives paid close attention to the declaration of the dead man's wife that recently a foreigner's son whom he treated had died from complications of a broken arm. They also investigated the theory of robbery, particularly after it was learned that the elder Dapper had lost a wallet containing valuable papers but no cash.

Authorities believe that if they could determine the underlying fears which actuated the young physician in insisting on some one accompanying him on the mission of mercy with the stranger, they will have struck the clue which will eventually bring the murderer to justice.

County detectives learned from the elder Dapper that the slayer spoke a slightly foreign accent, that he was about 25 years old, weighed 160 pounds and was about 6 feet in height, light hair and blond complexion. He wore a brown suit and soft felt hat.

Dr. Dapper's mother and sisters are now in Atlantic City, but are expected to return to Pittsburgh immediately.

The young physician was graduated from the University of Pittsburgh medical school in 1925. For a year afterward he was an interne at St. John's Hospital. He has since been a member of the hospital's junior medical staff.

Link Audit And Vare Quiz

Is the hearing scheduled to open here August 27 an investigation of the Vare-Wilson contest for United States Senator, or is it a revival of the independent audit of county fiscal affairs made last year by County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, who was then county controller?

Political leaders of the county and workers who took an active part in the Vare-Wilson campaign, subpenaed by telegram yesterday to appear before the sub-committee of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, United States Senate, are asking this question. Most of those who were ordered to appear are in a quandary as to just what is wanted and what kind of a hearing is to be held.

In none of the subpenas served is there mention of ballots, voting check lists, unused ballots, tabulation sheets or other election paraphernalia of the senatorial fight. On the other hand many of the subpenas order the recipients to bring with them data pertaining to the independent audit.

For example, Recorder of Deeds Samuel D. Foster is instructed to produce records of twice-paid tax receipts for 1926 along with records showing the sum paid and the disposition of the funds. The question of twice-paid taxes figured prominently in the audit.

The subpena served on County Controller Robert G. Woodside, asks for the Controller's report for 1926 and all records of testimony taken at McGovern's audit.

In no case has any of the county officials been ordered to produce direct records pertaining to the senatorial campaign.

The following have been supenaed:

Mayor Charles H. Kline, Joseph G. Armstrong, E. V. Babcock, Charles C. McGovern, county commissioners; J. R. Costella, deputy county treasurer; Robert G. Woodside, county controller; John Francies, county treasurer; R. J. Cunningham, of Turtle Creek; Keystone National Bank and Gottlieb Golder, secretary treasurer, and William L. Golder, manager, Pittsburgh Printing Company.

James F. Malone, president of city Council and chairman of the Vare campaign committee in the 1926 senatorial fight.

Samuel D. Foster, county treasurer then and now recorder of deeds.

W. H. Ziefel, secretary of the county committee and chief clerk in the county commissioners' office.

James E. Routley, assistant chief clerk in the county commissioners' office.

Gilbert Cloonan, chief clerk in the county Bureau of Elections office, under the jurisdiction of the county commissioners.

John Weible, clerk in the Bureau of Elections office.

Harry McCloskey, clerk in the Bureau of Elections office.

Clyde Ziefel, clerk in the Bureau of Elections office.

Arthur Strahl, former clerk in the Bureau of Elections office.

Justus Schroedel, superintendent of county buildings and chairman of the Republican committee of the Twenty-fourth Ward.

Samuel Eades, chief clerk of the Board for the Assessment and Revision of taxes.

M. Barney Cohen, an attorney.

S. J. Topley, clerk of courts.

Sol Goldstein, alderman of the Fourteenth Ward.

Son Jailed, Tries to End Life

John Van Roy Greene's mother threw herself into the path of a speeding automobile today when the steel bars of the county jail were placed between them. Constable John Reed saved her.

Greene, 27, an electrician, was ordered to jail by Judge Thomas D. Carnahan in Common Pleas Court for failure to pay his wife, whom he met through a matrimonial bureau, $35 in alimony. The mother accompanied the son to court today.

"I only make 63 cents an hour, judge," Greene pleaded. "Must I make my mother starve?"

WIFE COMES FIRST

"Your first duty is to your wife," Judge Carnahan replied. "You must pay the $5 weekly allotment or go to jail."

The mother rose.

"You can't send him to jail, judge. If you do I won't vote for you next time."

While the courtroom tittered, the mother, growing hysterical, was led to the Sheriff's office.

GIRL ABDUCTED, MOTHER FEARS

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Aug. 21.—Chewing gum money was all the cash Alice Adams, 16, had when she disappeared from her sister's home Sunday night, her mother revealed when reporting her absence to state police.

Mrs. F. W. Astmann, 425 Freeport street, believes her daughter did not leave of her own accord. She had been helping her sister, Mrs. H. J. Barrs, of 609 Sixth avenue, on Sunday and left to visit a neighbor. She had only 10 cents when she left the Barrs home and left behind her a purse and hat.

Alice has been working as an usher in the Liberty Theater and would have become a freshman in the local high school next month.

AIR-MINDED PITTSBURGH

Pittsburgh's three busy airports are still busier, now that announcement has been made of the new municipal airport—an announcement, incidentally, which is bringing out Pittsburgh's air-minded public to the fields. Here you see Jack Fife, auto sales manager, back at his old love at Bettis Field.

HELPED ON SITE

And here we have three of the enthusiasts who helped the Chamber of Commerce Committee select Pittsburgh's new municipal airport on Lebanon Church road. They are Raymond M. Marlier, chairman, Chamber of Commerce Aeronautics Committee; W. O. Snyder, Department of Commerce Airport Inspector, and E. L. Schmidt, engineer, County Planning Commission. They're "arguing" aviation, needless to say.

Flying is not a man's game, opined Mrs. E. J. Marshlewitz at Mayer Field, Sunday She is shown here with her husband and Fred Stewart just after Pilot Eddie Schultz, chief instructor of Mayer Aircraft Corporation, had taken them for an aerial joy-ride. "Why," she asks, "can't a woman pilot as well as a mere man?"

MIX HALED TO COURT FOR HITTING WOMAN

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Faced with two charges of battery as a result of his fight with Will Morrissey, film comedian, last Saturday night, Tom Mix, cowboy film star, today promised Morrissey "a real fight when the matter comes up in court."

Warrants against the actor were preferred late yesterday by Miss Midgie Miller, Morrissey's wife, who claims she also was marked in the encounter, which occurred at a housewarming at Playa Bel Rey, attended by many film notables.

She wore a bandage over the left eye when she appeared at the prosecutor's office. Her husband, she said, was in bed recovering "from the booting Mix gave him." She said Morrissey suffered slight concussion of the brain.

Mix announced through his attorney that he would appear today for arraignment and to answer the charges.

"Morrissey will find us ready for a real fight in court," the attorney said. "We will be ready with both guns when the time comes so that the truth about the whole matter will be known ultimately."

Mix attributed the charges filed against him to a desire for publicity.

SAYS MIX KICKED

Miss Miller alleged Mix made an unprovoked kicking attack upon her husband, after he had handed the screen star some "left-handed compliments." She alleged she was assailed when she went to his aid.

Morrissey attributed the star's display of temper to a "wise-crack" the comedian made about the future of Mix and his famous horse Tony in the talking movies.

"Tony can snort, but what can you do?" Morrissey said he asked Mix.

The Morrisseys were arrested immediately after the fight on charges of drunkenness, to which they pleaded not guilty yesterday. Their trials have been set for Wednesday and Thursday.

Mix denied he started the fight, and said he battled only in self-defense, after the comedian became abusive. He denied he struck the woman.

CYCLE PATROLMAN RUN DOWN BY TRUCK

Motorcycle Patrolman Henry Cox, 30, of Yew street, reporting at the North Side Station, was injured today when his motorcycle was struck by a truck driven by David Shirkey, 19, of 2367 California avenue, at Perrysville avenue and Venture street. Cox was taken to the Allegheny General Hospital. He is believed not seriously hurt. Shirkey was arrested.

Goebel Is Favored To Win

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—"Yankee Doodle," the airplane in which Art Goebel cut eight hours off the coast-to-coast flying record and became the first person who ever made a non-stop flight from the Pacific to the Atlantic, was being given preliminary touches today in preparation for entry in the trans-continental derby, which will start here on September 12.

Yankee Doodle, following the feat which was culminated yesterday when the plane landed at 11:04 a. m. after 18 hours and 59 minutes in the air, was favored today to win the trans-continental derby which is attracting interest among aviation enthusiasts.

Goebel and Harry Tucker, California sportsman and backer of the flight who was a passenger, were resting today after their trip.

SLAIN DOCTOR'S FATHER TOOK GUN ON TRIP—EMPTY

"My finger got caught behind the trigger of the slayer's gun or I would have been murdered, too," related Henry A. Dapper, vice president of the Fort Pitt Brewing Company, in an interview at his home today following the murder of his son, Dr. Harry R. Dapper, of Carrick, and an attempt to his own life last night in Mifflin township.

The father is suffering from lacerations of the head, bruises and shock as well as loss of blood sustained in a last-minute attempt to save his son's life by submitting to a blood transfusion.

He is 66 years old and is weak following his experiences with the killer. As he told his story, however, quietly, sadly at first, he rose up in bed and clenched his fists as if he wished another chance at his son's slayer.

"I went along with Harry because he said he did not relish the long lonely ride back from Mifflin township where the stranger was taking him, presumably to attend a dying wife. I took an old revolver I've had in the house for years, but not because I suspected all would not be well. I just don't know why I took the weapon—it wasn't loaded. It hadn't been for years.

BATTLE FOR LIFE

"The stranger rode in the front seat beside my son and I climbed into the back. We rode in silence for a long time. Then the stranger remarked: 'There are only a few doctors who would make a long trip like this without getting paid first.'

"Neither my son, nor I replied, and we continued out the Lebanon church road. Near the church, the man directed my son to turn into a dirt road. We had gone but a short distance when he pointed out a house, explaining we would have to continue on foot.

"As Harry stopped the car, I heard a muffled shot and my son gasped: 'I'm shot.'

"I was stunned for a moment—then I grabbed the man by the shoulders, calling to Harry to get out of the car. The stranger fought like a madman and I felt the muzzle of the gun against my side. I twisted and shoved the gun away, trying to take it from him, but my finger got caught in back of the trigger—just in time.

"He pulled the trigger, but the hammer was not released because of my finger and both of us fell out of the machine in the struggle. I managed to get my gun out of my pocket, but it was useless without cartridges, so I tried to hit the man on the head.

SENT TO HOSPITAL

"He hit me on the side of the head then and I felt a little weak. After that I felt him hit me again and this time I became unconscious.

"When I came too, I found Harry sitting along the side of the road doubled up and I ran for help. The car was gone and so was the stranger. People came in from the main road and took us to the hospital.

"It was a terrible thing," he concluded, a fierce look in his eyes. "If only my gun had been loaded. . . ."

Shoots His Wife, Kills Himself

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 21.—Gaining entrance to the bedroom of his estranged wife by climbing up over a porch roof, Charles Wertz, 30, an electrician, shot and severely wounded Mrs. Thelma Wertz, 26, as she lay asleep, and then committed suicide by firing a bullet through his head.

The double shooting took place here early today at the home of Mrs. Wertz's father, Charles Leibfreid, with whom she had been living since separating from her husband several weeks ago.

Awakened by the shooting, the parents of Mrs. Wertz found the son-in-law dead and their daughter dangerously wounded. Jealousy is believed to have prompted the shooting. Mrs. Wertz has relatives living in Pittsburgh.

6 KILLED, $1,000,000 DAMAGE IN TORNADO

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Two tornadoes took six lives, injured more than three score persons and caused property damage estimated in excess of $1,000,000 in Southern Minnesota and Northern Iowa late yesterday.

Austin, Minn., was the community that suffered heaviest. Three were killed there, more than 50 persons were injured, and business buildings and residences were wrecked.

A fourth Minnesota casualty was near Glenville. Two women lost their lives at Twin Lakes, a resort near Rockwell City, Ia.

The known dead are:

August Newbauer, automobile mechanic, and Harold Baumgartner, 12, both of Austin; and Laverne Roberts, of Nora Springs, Ia., all killed at Austin.

Mrs. Chris G. Hagen, at Glenville, Minn.

Stella Powell, of Traer, and Mrs. George Steer, 50, of Havelock, killed at Twin Lakes, Ia.

LEGION PATROLS

One hundred members of the American Legion aided Company H, Minnesota National Guard, in patrolling the streets of Austin today as a recheck of the damage was started after a night of darkness, due to failure of power lines.

Fifteen injured at Austin required hospital treatment. Three are not expected to recover.

The Minnesota tornado apparently started in the vicinity of Emmons, in Freeborn county, near the Iowa line. It swung northeastward, missing Glenville and working its way into Austin, and then turned to enter Iowa.

As the tornado swept on toward Austin, farm buildings and crops were crushed. A heavy rain followed.

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 21.—Declaring that Gov. Smith will carry Pennsylvania because the labor element of the state is dissatisfied with prohibition and wants beer, John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, at a luncheon here yesterday, said that the youth of the land is going to the dogs because of prohibtion.

If prohibition continues in this country, said Raskob, the nation will be in a worse state than Russia before very long.

Samuel Rea, former president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, will head an independent group of normal Republicans to promote the Smith campaign, it was announced at the luncheon.

QUITS JOB FOR BELGIAN CROESUS; NOW SHE'S OUT

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—A Wall Street stenographer who quit her job to follow the fortunes of the late Alfred Loewenstein was back home again today—just a stenographer looking for a job.

Miss R. Van Name was employed by the banking firm of Albert Emanuel & Co. last May when the Belgian millionaire came to this country. He visited the offices of the banking firm on several occasions, and, although he had brought several secretaries with him from Belgium, he found himself in need of one more. He asked Miss Van Name to take some dictation and was so pleased with her work that he used her services repeatedly and when he returned to Europe offered to take her with him.

Miss Van Name, who before had never been very far from her Staten Island home, gladly accepted. Then followed a short period in which, as a member of the spectacular millionaire's staff, she accompanied him about Europe in automobiles, trains, yachts and airplanes.

It all came to an end, however, with the death of Loewenstein from an airplane while flying over the English Channel. Yesterday Miss Van Name returned on the Cunard liner Franconia.

She said she was not a passenger in the Loewenstein plane at the time of the financier's death and knew nothing of the circumstances.

BIRTH GIVES JAIL EXTRA PRISONER

There are 521 prisoners in the county jail today, where yesterday there were only 520. And there was no commitment in the office of Warden John McNeil to account for the extra.

Clara M. Smith, 32, committed to jail August 9 on a misdemeanor charge brought by her mother-in-law, gave birth early today to a bouncing girl in the jail hospital. Jail Physician C. G. Ellis officiated.

Under the law a woman anticipating a visit from the stork must be sent to the hospital. Matron Mary Henneshagen, however, was informed by the Smith woman yesterday that she did not anticipate a call from the long-legged bird so soon.

Both mother and babe are doing nicely.

Mrs. Smith, unable to raise $1,000 bail, has been in jail since August 9. She had been surrendered by her bondsman, Richard Shultz, a Wilkinsburg carpenter, who originally had signed her bond last June.

In a divorce libel by her husband, Randolph P. Smith, 481 Ella street, Wilkinsburg, a barber, J. E. V. Wentz, Indiana, Pa., was named. Judge James M. Gray, in Common Pleas Court, granted the husband a divorce.

POLL BACKS G. O. P. STRENGTH CLAIM

WORK FORESEES SOUTH BREAK TO HOOVER

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Two unprecedented developments in national politics have been revealed in the Hearst newspapers' nation-wide straw vote forecasting the result of the 1928 presidential election, Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the Republican National Committee, said today. They are:

The wholesale breaking of party lines, particularly in the Old South and the Border States.

The predominance of the women's vote as a factor in the campaign.

"The Hearst straw vote is most interesting and significant," Mr. Work said. "It is unquestionably the most thorough national poll ever undertaken. The method employed in soliciting votes makes it as accurate as a straw vote can be.

"I am going to follow it closely. No straw vote can be taken too seriously by a politician, but the results of the Hearst poll conform closely with the information I have obtained from workers in all sections of the country.

SOUTH BREAKING UP

"When our party workers from Southern states and border states first came to me and said they were going to carry them for Hoover, I was frankly skeptical. The old Solid South tradition was too deeply ingrained. I wished the Southern workers luck, doubtingly.

"But with the straw vote returns coming in from the border states and some of the old South states, it appears that the enthusiasm of the workers was not based on overoptimism, but on hard facts.

"We see in Georgia, for instance, that Smith has 8,364 votes to 6,229 for Hoover. If this represented an equal poll of the entire state, it would be encouraging to a Republican in that Democratic stronghold. But if it represents the city vote only, it shows the Republicans may carry Georgia. Similar situations prevail in Alabama, Florida, Tennessee and North and South Carolina, although too few votes have been taken in these states to give an accurate check.

"I am informed the straw votes in Kentucky are chiefly from Lexington and Louisville. Of 6,300 votes taken, Hoover has a slight lead. If the cities continue to vote in that proportion, the rural vote will leave Hoover with a safe majority in that state.

TEXAS, OKLAHOMA

"Texas returns also show the results of our campaign. Democratic Hoover clubs have been organized in that state and are going to promote Republican votes. I am informed that one of these clubs has 3,500 members now.

"When Oklahoma is polled, it is going to show a margin for Hoover, I am sure. I think we will certainly carry the state.

"Kentucky ant Tennessee probably will appear in the Republican column, too. Our workers in North Carolina are the most enthusiastic of any of the Republican optimists in the Solid South and I am keenly interested to see a complete poll of that state."

Dr. Work asserted that the women's vote would be a decisive element in the campaign.

The Republican campaign director was also pleased at the showing made by his candidate in rural districts, particularly those of the Middle West.

"Farmers are not going to desert the Republican party," he asserted. "The poll again confirms our information on this point.

"Downstate Illinois is going heavily for Hoover. Rural districts of Gov. Smith's home state, New York, are pro-Hoover. Hoover is given a substantial lead in Indiana, although I am informed most of the votes in that state come from northern industrial centers.

"The poll shows that prohibition is an issue of the campaign. The wet centers are voting for a wet candidate. This accounts for the Smith majority in Wisconsin, but since most of the votes shown are from Milwaukee, there is no reason to believe the rural districts will not swing the state to the Republican column.

"Our workers are confident they will carry San Francisco, although the straw poll shows the vote is close there. As far as the result of the election is concerned, however, California is safe because of the 3-to-1 plurality Hoover has rolled up in southern counties, including the city of Los Angeles."

CITY RESULTS CLOSE

Mr. Work was impressed by the closeness of the race in Chicago and Cook county.

"The Democrats have counted on a huge wet vote in Chicago to carry the state for them," he said. "The straw vote shows there is little cause for apprehension as far as the state at large is concerned.

"Similarly, in the states of Pennsylvania, Michigan and Massachusetts, the metropolitan vote is close, despite the wet appeal. The rural vote will be the deciding factor.

"Unquestionably there will be changes in sentiment as the poll advances. It is too early to make definite predictions as to the vote in November in any district. But I believe the changes will be reflected in the straw vote."

They have been defeated with all on board.

Talking movies have completely taken the wind out of their trombones.

Every actor in the pictures now reads his own titles aloud.

Remember those ushers who used to eject conversationalists from the last row?

They cannot do anything now except eject themselves.

Or turn the hose on the feature picture.

The silent drama is now noisier than a milkman's wagon in a residential district.

All the old pictures will have to be done over again. Griffith will have to retake "The Birth of a Nation" just to let us hear what the doctor said.

We always wondered what instructions "The Four Horsemen" whispered to the jockeys.

Can you imagine Bull Montana studying monkey talk to play that gorilla in "The Rue Morgue"?

What happens if "Nanook of the North" has a Southern accent?

Or if the guy they stuff up Lon Chaney's back decides to do some talking on his own account?

It will be a great moment in an extra's life when he writes back to the home folks and tells them that he has been promoted to an echo in a mountain classic.

Suppose we discover that the bloodhounds who chase Eliza over the ice are only rabbits with false faces?

There is no room in the talkies for the beautiful but dumb.

All those smart looking people are going to get a chance to prove it.

The next guy who plays Napoleon had better start learning something. He will have to study French out of books and not off perfume labels.

A lot of those pharmacy cowboys will have to let their horses do the talking.

It will not affect Rin Tin Tin.

He will probably stick to his original statement.

From now on we will have to perch in the gallery to keep the actors from breathing in our ears.

Then came the dawn. There was no way of stopping it.

The August OVERCOAT SALE

Begins Tomorrow

Three price groups, with hundreds of coats at each price:

$28.50 $36.50 $48.50

There is just one reason why more overcoats are sold here in mid-August than any other time in the whole year. This is because of the proven, large savings which are to be made at this time. That is the story of the August Overcoat Sale in a nutshell.

Also please consider this: our records show that a large proportion of men who once buy overcoats in the August Sale, thereafter buy their overcoats at this time.

One thing more: the new customers which are added each year are recruited largely from relatives, friends and associates of those who have bought overcoats in previous August Sales.

The styles, fabrics and values speak for themselves. Men by the thousands do not buy winter overcoats in Summer, come back again at the same time, when they are ready for a second coat, nor recommend similar action to their friends, without good and sufficient reasons.

The reasons are here and you will recognize them when you see the overcoats and the Sale prices, tomorrow.

The Men's Store will open at 8:30 tomorrow

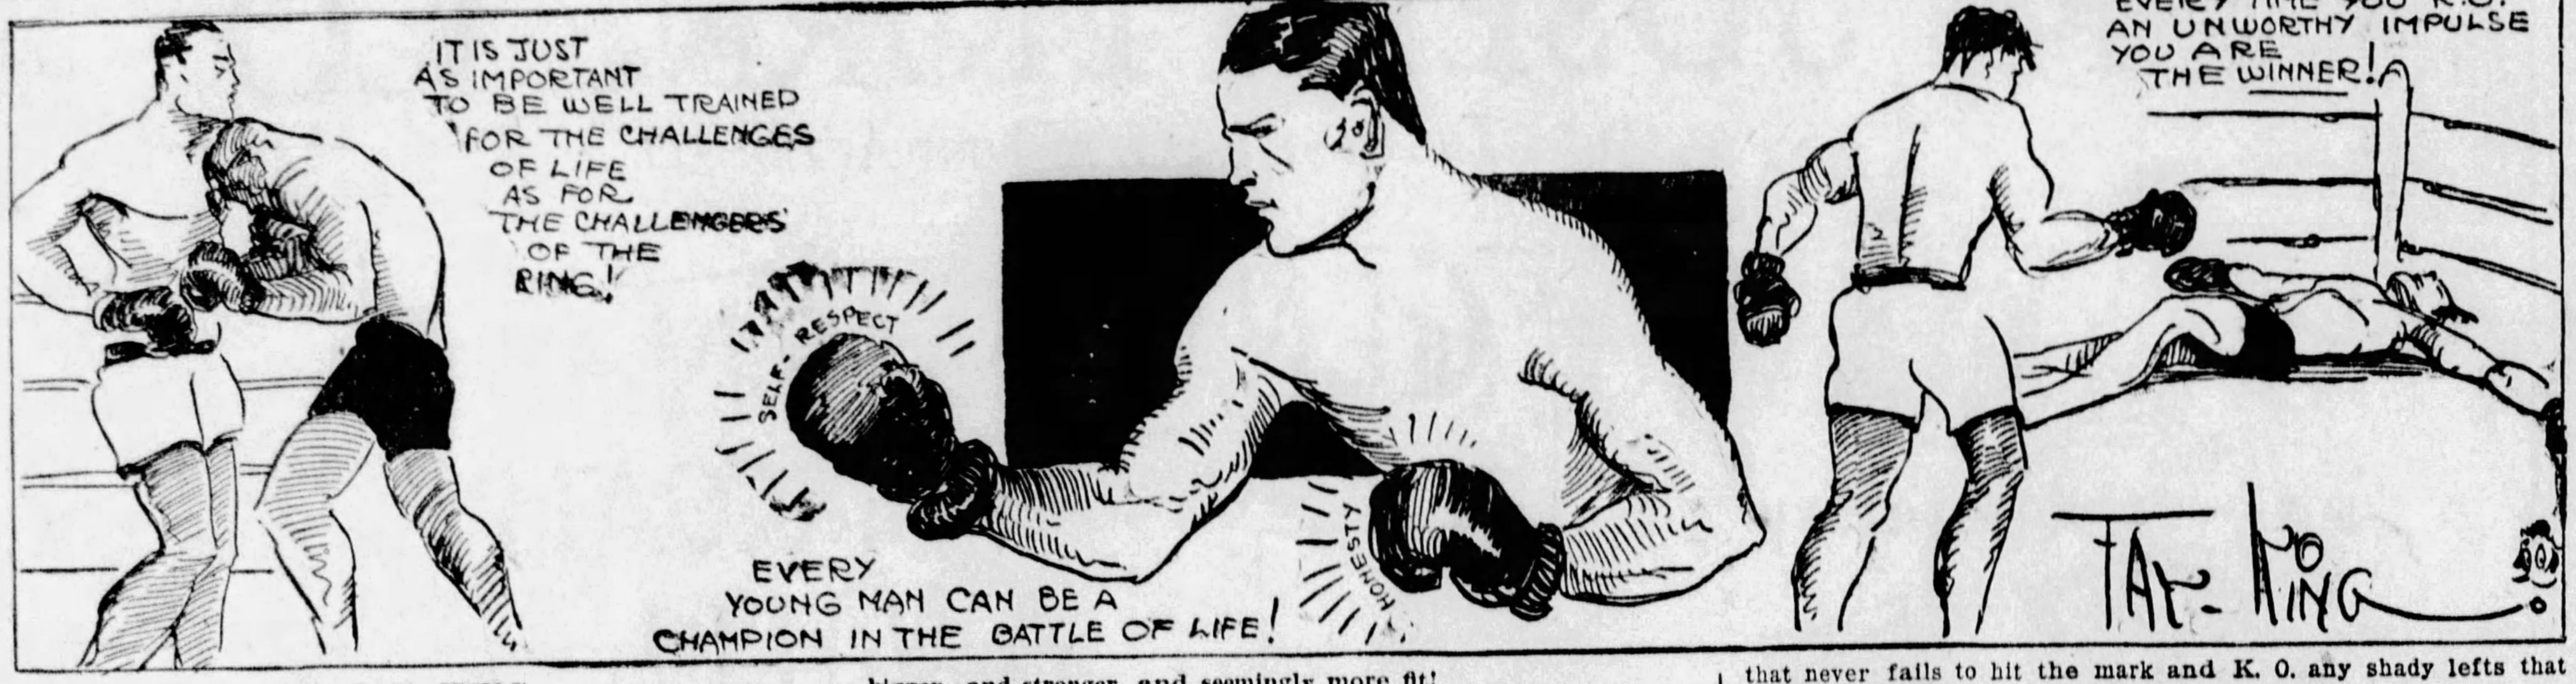
How Every Boy Can Be an Undefeatable Champion Told by Fay King



IT IS JUST AS IMPORTANT TO BE WELL TRAINED FOR THE CHALLENGES OF LIFE AS FOR THE CHALLENGERS OF THE RING!
SELF-RESPECT
HONESTY
EVERY YOUNG MAN CAN BE A CHAMPION IN THE BATTLE OF LIFE!
EVERY TIME YOU K.O. AN UNWORTHY IMPULSE YOU ARE THE WINNER!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

THESE days most every boy would like to be a champion!

Every boy can be a champion—an undefeatable champion—in the greater ring battles of life!

He will earn respect, which is a 100 per cent gate, winner take all!

Champions who have won in life have often had harder battles than champions who have won in the ring!

They have often been very unevenly matched.

The unworthy challenger they have had to defeat being much bigger, and stronger, and seemingly more fit!

But the boy well trained to battle in life has a trusty RIGHT that never fails to hit the mark and K. O. any shady lefts that aim to down him!

TWENTY CAUGHT IN HILL RAIDS

Twenty persons were arrested and a large quantity of moonshine was seized, it was reported by Lieuts. John Schnurr, Frank Shine and John Nowak, in raids on two dwellings and four stores in the Hill district last night.

Six men were charged with keeping disorderly houses.

BASIC FACTS for the BUYER of a NEW AUTOMOBILE

1 Your present car has only one fundamental basis of value; i.e., what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.

2 Your present car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.

3 The largest allowance offered is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is; sometimes it is not.

4 An excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value.

5 First judge the merits of the new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in allowance offered on your present car. Remember that you are making a purchase, not a sale.

STAGE AND SCREEN ACTIVITIES DETAILED IN PICTURES AND GOSSIP ABOUT PLAYERS

Two Stock Productions, Feature Photoplays and Vaudeville Acts Prominent in Week's Amusements

George Sharp Makes Debut As Actor in Pitt in Romantic Comedy, "Upstairs and Down"

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

THOUGH there are no escalators operating on the Pitt stage this week, there's quite a lot of movement from one floor to another. First you're upstairs on the lounge porch of one of those Long Island estates that playwrights delight in. Then you're downstairs in the kitchen with the servants. And two days later (stage time) you're back upstairs again. All of which goes to show that playwriting Frederic and Fanny Hatton knew what they were about when they christened their comedy "Upstairs and Down."

The production is quite satisfactory as produced by the George Sharp players. And who do you suppose is down in the servant quarters? Mr. Sharp himself. He makes his acting debut with his company as Louis La Tour, an Italian man servant. Quite well he does, too, considering he hasn't utilized his histronic talents for some years. But, once an actor, always an actor—so they say.

The plot of the piece is quite a maze of romances, flirtations and infatuations. Soft, sweet nothings are murmured among the upstairs society group. And two of the gentlemen have differences over a girl. Some harsh words are said. Downstairs, also, there is love talk and stolen kisses. But when two of the hired men come to differences over the same girl—a tussling match follows. And it's all very funny—Mr. Sharp and Edwin Vail rolling over the floor.

There's quite a display of bathrobes and bathing apparel in the second act when society invades the kitchen on a unique indoor picnic. Then the leading woman, Olive Meehan, comes along in some golden-colored pajamas.

The cast is capable. In the society group, besides Miss Meehan, are Gus Forbes, May Buckley, Bradley Page, John W. Moore, Mabel Kroman, Robert Fisk and Peggy Dougherty. Among the servants are Mr. Sharp, Hugh Harper, Robert Lawrence, Helen Forbes, Brown Mehard and Edwin Vail.

Mr. Page essays Capt. O'Keefe of the English polo team. And, my, how he can make love. He could have shown Romeo a few things. You have to like him—and the Irish inflection he puts into his voice.

The production last night, witnessed by a large audience, ran quite smoothly. The only rough spots were those on the kitchen floor. The linoleum needed some tacks or something. Mr. Moore came sailing in and tripped a bit. Gus Forbes, too, tried to lift it with his foot. We shouldn't like to see those golden pajamas or fancy bathing suits on the floor. So we suggest it be fastened.

NOVARRO STAR IN PENN

In "Forbidden Hours," current photoplay in the Penn, Ramon Novarro and Renee Adoree are called upon to depict royal characters. It is another of those Zenda tales, and the fact that it follows strictly in the set style, even to setting up the king's name as "Michael," it pleases a very large element of the public that has been fond of that sort of romance since the earliest days of Anthony Hope. Novarro has the role of a youthful king, who finds himself involved in cou[illegible] intrigue and romance. Miss Adoree has a congenial part and does it charmingly. A "gang" comedy and an interesting news reel complete the screen offerings. On the stage Teddy Joyce has a spectacular travesty on "Babes in the Wood," which gets away under the title of "Babes of Broadway." With an exceptionally well trained ballet, the extravaganza feature carries the show along at a fast clip. Helen Honan, the Colette Sisters, Fred Bernard, Electa Havel and Sally Sarraf have good specialties. Dick Leibert has a novelty organ number.

"BOHEMIANS" OPENS ACADEMY SEASON

The season of burlesque in the Academy opened yesterday, the attraction being "The Bohemians." Frankie "Red" Moore, feminine singer and dancer, includes "Swanee Blues" among her numbers. Art Mayer furnishes much of the comedy. He gives a burlesque on "The Shooting of Dan McGrew." A dance act is offered by Opal Oakley and six other steppers. Travesty skits include "The Gorilla" and "The Gold Diggers." Among those in the cast are Billy Shuler, Mickey Kane, Emilie Billings and Frank Henri. There is a chorus of dancing and singing girls.

FACES YOU MEET -:- IN CURRENT PLAYS -:- ON STAGE AND SCREEN

Olive Meehan is leading woman in "Upstairs and Down" on the Pitt stage.

You recognize Harry Bannister, of course. He's in "Smilin' Through," Nixon drama.

Ramon Novarro has the starring role in "Forbidden Hours," the current film in the Penn.

Thomas Meighan is featured in "The Racket," an underworld drama, on the Stanley screen.

HARRIS OFFERS DANCERS

The headline act in the three-day vaudeville bill, which opened yesterday in the Harris, is the Mahon and Scott Revue, presented by a sextet of singers and dancers. Comedy is developed when a capable pair of dancers gives interpretations of acrobatic and bowery dancing. The feminine member gets a lot of rough usuage, being tossed here and thrown there. But she's up and smiling at the final applause. Georgia Hunter mixes songs and a bit of the Al Jolson manner with a rapid-fire line of chatter, mostly nonsense. He gets a big hand. Rudell and Dunigan poke fun at the continued story magazines and amuse with a race-track and a restaurant sketch. Cody and Wilson prove a rather attractive pair of feminine entertainers—musically inclined. Perez catches a saucer, cup and spoon on his head—and does other juggling feats, while Marguerite, his partner, stands by and smiles. Juda Valley & Co., an acrobatic offering, completes the stage show. The photoplay is "Clothes Makes the Woman," featuring Eve Southern and Walter Pidgeon.

NIXON DRAMA PLEASES

By JOHN P. COWAN.

"Smilin' Through," long planned by Nixon Players as one of the most important productions in their summer repertoire, was given its initial presentation last night. In this play Anne Harding had been billed to appear in the dual role of Kathleen Dungannon and Moyeen Clare, made notable by Jane Cowl. But in the closing rehearsals last week it developed that Miss Harding would not be able to appear and to Marguerite Merrill fell the burden of carrying through the leading feminine parts in the cast. How well she succeeded was attested by the enthusiastic reception with which the play was received by one of the largest audiences of the Nixon's stock season.

The cordial feeling across the footlights between the Nixon Players and their patrons was never emphasized with greater spirit than last night, when, before the curtain was lifted, Harry Bannister explained that Miss Harding had not sufficiently recovered her strength to allow her to appear. He added that those who were disappointed might go to the boxoffice and have their money refunded and then return and watch the performance as the players' guests. It was a pleasant sally and a graceful introduction for Miss Merrill.

"Smilin' Through," Allan Langdon Martin's drama, with World War echoes and its dominating touch of the supernatural, is heavy entertainment for the hot weather and in attempting it the Nixon Players have shown courage and a willingness to be gauged by the highest standards. They suffer not one bit by comparisons, when consideration is given to the time for stock company preparation. The characters were happily cast and the play is adequately mounted, correctly dressed and fittingly acted. The Nixon patrons devoutedly wished to see Miss Harding in the principal role, but this did not dim their loyalty to Miss Merrill or their appreciation of her work, and especially when they have a deep human interest in the actress-mother who not yet is able to appear. This human interest is for the welfare of Miss Harding (Mrs. Harry Bannister) and her baby daughter. The word is that they are coming "Smilin' Through,"—thank you.

INDIAN BARITONE IS SHERIDAN FEATURE

The high spot in the combination of vaudeville and photoplays, which opened a three-day engagement in the Sheridan Square yesterday, is Chief Caupolican, the Indian baritone from the Metropolitan Opera Company. The screen presentation is "Clothes Make the Woman," a love story concerning Princes Anastasia, daughter of the Czar of Russia, said to be now living in the United States. Johnny Mack & Co., offer an act of dance and comedy. Alexander and Peggy present a black-faced comedy skit, which has to do with a gentleman who takes unto himself a bride and his efforts to take the bride on a honeymoon but they miss the train. Merritt White and Kramer are seen in a mixture of vaudeville essentials. Additional short screen features and John Edward Mitchell, in an organlogue, complete the bill.

CHESTER CONKLIN IN GRAND PICTURE

The career of a made-to-order hero and the incidents in his making furnish the background for cutting satire in "The Big Noise," a thoroughly enjoyable picture which features the bill in the Grand this week. Modern newspaper methods come in for a big share in the satire, and along with it is a stab at the "gang" politician's system of turning public sympathy to his own account. The picture ends happily. Romance is furnished by a flapper daughter of the pseudo-hero, who elopes with a man who brings love to her and prosperity to her family. Chester Conklin is the star. A first-class cast is in support. The Grand orchestra and Ollie Thomas, saxophonist, provide a good stage attraction.

NEW ORCHESTRA IN SANDERS THIS WEEK

Sanders, Freeport highway, this week is presenting for dancing a mid-western orchestra. Boy Royce and Wyn Taylor are directors of the unit.

SCAFFOLD COLLAPSES, HURTING 2 AT SHARON

SHARON, Pa., Aug. 21.—When a scaffold on which they were working on the Carver Hotel building broke, Frank Large, 50, and Walter Staunton, 24, local painters, fell 35 feet and were seriously injured yesterday.

TOM MEIGHAN IN STANLEY

As good a Thomas Meighan picture as has been to our town in a long, long time is being presented in the Stanley this week. It is "The Racket," based on the Broadway stage drama. The theme develops the conflict between an honest police officer and a powerful gang leader. The policeman is transferred to an outlying precinct because of interference in organization politics. But the war between him and the gang leader continues. It is a war to the death—ending when the gangster, trying to make a getaway, gets instead a bullet in the back. But our heroic policeman doesn't stoop to shooting in the back. It is an organization man from the state attorney's office that fires the climax-bringing shot. Meighan does a capable piece of acting as the police officer. Louis Wolheim carries the crook role. As soon as you glimpse his face you know he's destined to be your favorite movie gang leader. And this Wolheim acts his part as well as looks it. The picture is well directed. There are thrills and suspense. Dailey Paskman's Radio Minstrels present a revue of song, dance and comedy on the stage. News pictures, an organlogue and special overture are on the bill.

SCOTTDALE PIONEER, Z. S. ENGLISH, DIES

SCOTTDALE, Pa., Aug. 21.—Zachariah S. English, 84, former street commissioner, charter member of the G. A. R. Band, and one of Scottdale's first firemen, was buried today.

HAZING BARRED AT ROCHESTER

ROCHESTER, Aug. 21.—Hazing of high school freshmen has been placed under ban here and Police Chief William Roth has issued an edict that all participants in hazing will be prosecuted.

ELEVATOR INCENDIARY FAILS IN THIRD TRY

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 21.—The fourth unsuccessful attempt within six months to fire the disused grain elevators of the late Alexander Parks in the central part of the city was nipped yesterday by neighbors who saw smoke. Two attempts were made yesterday. Police suspect the same person or persons are responsible for the series. In two instances oil-soaked rags were found to have been fired.

LECTURE, FILM IN OLYMPIC

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG.

Dr. M. Sayle Taylor's lecture on "Married Love," which is being given all this week for women only, drew crowded houses to the Olympic yesterday. Dr. Taylor's exposition of this how-to-be-happy-though-married theme is treated solely from a physiological angle and is given in an exceedingly frank, but clean and dignified manner. His humor, however, is unworthy the dignity of the remainder of his talk and distinctly lowers its tone. Dr. Taylor demonstrates by means of a chart. His confrere, Dr. W. M. D. Davidson, of London, has living models with which to illustrate his talk on the functions and exercises of the ductless glands, a talk that is a bit too scientific and over-long for the average movie audience and under which yesterday's listeners grew restive.

The motion picture is not Greta Garbo's "The Temptress," as announced, but "The Price of Honor." This film tells the story of an innocent man convicted of murder on circumstantial evidence, and who, upon his release, lays a plan by which he proves the wrong of such a conviction. And the hero is saved at the eleventh hour and fifty-ninth second. William V. Mong, Dorothy Revier, Malcolm McGregor and Gustave von Seyffertitz do some good work, in fact, the small company is well cast in its entirety. There is also a Gang comedy.

My Bleach for Tan and Freckles

"I continue my photographic posing all through the summer," says Miss Emily Boyle, noted New York camera model, "and being inclined to tan and freckle, I have to have a bleach that will keep my skin white and flawless and at the same time is harmless.

"For my bleach I use no ready-made preparation, but simply get three ounces of Orchard White at the drug store and mix it with the juice of two lemons. This makes a quarter pint of a perfectly marvelous bleach for a few cents. Rubbed into the face, neck and arms, it bleaches away tan and freckles and makes any dark, sallow or discolored skin beautifully clear and white. This is the bleach all the studio models learn about soon after they begin posing. No ready-to-use preparation can equal it, because, for one reason, you use it while it is still fresh."

How to Sweeten Sour Stomach

Sour stomach means that acid is fermenting the food, forming gas and causing pain. You must get rid of this acid for it not only causes severe discomfort, but it also attacks the stomach lining and may lead to ulcers.

For acid indigestion — and this covers 10 out of 20 cases—there's nothing better than pure, harmless Bi-nesia. A few tablets or a teaspoonful of the powder will instantly neutralize the acid, thus relieving the pain at once. And Bi-nesia is the one remedy which heals the delicate stomach lining, thus protecting fully against ulcers. For quick, safe relief from acid indigestion, get a large 50 cent package of Bi-nesia tablets or powder of any druggist.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

HOLLYHOCKS

By BERTHA R. McDONALD

CAMILLA CAMDEN sat in the garden of her old home, lost to everything save the blackness of her mood. Only seven years before she had wandered here amid this wealth of bloom, a happy, carefree girl of 18, dreaming her youthful dreams—dreams in which John Whitmore, a young writer summering on the adjoining estate, was the all-absorbing figure.

They had reached that place in their affairs where each had declared that the other was all there was in the world when that precipitous marriage had been forced upon her; a marriage arranged by Col. Holbrooke, her father, and Camden, a man almost twice her age.

She had agreed because above all things she wished to please her father. Perhaps instinctively she felt the futility of struggling against his iron will. Be that as it may, she never had complained to him of the hideous mistake which had cost her those six years of utmost anguish, until death had mercifully released her and sent her back to the Holbrooke home with her 5-year-old child.

Almost a year of peace and now again he would rob her of her chance for the great romance, denying its very existence, denying even her right to dream. She had seen the cloud gathering for some time in the frequency of Dr. Beacon's visits, and his growing intimacy with her father.

Her whole soul crying out for the big adventure that has been denied her, or at least for her woman's right to dream and wait, she had rejected this irreproachable suitor and had brought the avalanche of her father's wrath thundering about her ears.

"One profits by one's mistakes, if one is wise," she told her irate parent. "Neither of us is going to mess up my life a second time, if I can help it."

"If you're hanging off waiting for that young writer chap to come back, you're a bigger fool than I thought," the Colonel sneered. "No man is anxious to assume the responsibilites of some other fellow's kid and supposing he should be—what would he do for Gwen?"

And that was the situation in a nutshell. In Asbury, where the Camdens had made their home, everybody thought Gwen a charming child but there in Three Oaks, people said she was queer—shook their heads sadly when they overheard any of her conversations with her imaginary playmates.

Dr. Beacon had said that only the most careful training, protection and professional watching would keep this little girl from growing up a wild thing from whom people would draw aside; that he would begin his professional care of her the day Camilla consented to marry him—to come away with him and the child to his own home on the other side of the village.

"A mother ought to know," she argued mentally. "I am just as sure as I am of the recurring seasons that seeing a face in a pansy, giving it personality and conversing with it, is merely the exhibition of the child's beautiful, imaginative soul, and she's the picture of health. I will not consent until something proves to me conclusively who is right."

Many times since her hasty marriage Camilla had thought of her lover with a tightening of heart strings. How she longed to see him, if only long enough to tell him that her sudden departure from Three Oaks was not all of her will or doing. She never had heard from him since that eventful day.

For some little time now Gwen's peculiarities seemed to have become more marked and this had been the signal for both the doctor and the colonel to press upon her the urgent need for an immediate decision. Gwen had been talking incessantly about a creature whom she called Pixen and whom she insisted read fairy stories to her out of a hollyhock book.

Camilla's reverie was interrupted by the crunching of gravel and looking up to see her father and Dr. Beacon approaching, she knew instinctively that they were about to renew their insistent persuasions. She was glad that Gwen was taking her nap. She had put her to sleep in the summer house more than an hour before. As the men came nearer, she felt alone, helpless—as though in some terrible jungle, beset with ferocious animals.

"See here, Cam," her father began abruptly. "I've sent for Deacon Eldredge and when he comes back we're going to get this marriage performed at once. Beacon wants to get back home and he says every moment of delay is dangerous. We can't afford to wait with that kid carrying on the way she does."

A sudden burst of childish laughter drew their attention to a garden path along which Gwen was dancing toward them, a sturdy little figure, the red showing healthily beneath the tan of her cheeks, dark eyes alert and smiling beneath a tangle of brown curls. She was carrying a book in her hands—a book whose cover was gay with multi-colored hollyhocks.

"Gwen!" exclaimed Camilla, reaching for the book. "Where did you get this?"

"Down to Pixen's hollyhock house, course. I didn't feel sleepy so I went to visit him. Pixen an' me we don't like 'at doctor dragon," pointing an accusing finger at Beacon.

"This has got to stop!" thundered the irate grandfather. "See here, you lying imp of Satan, where is your precious Pixen and his hollyhock house? Take me to them if you can!"

With calm poise, despite her grandfather's anger, Dr. Beacon's grim set features or her mother's wonder filled eyes, Gwen took her grandfather's hand and led the way. Across the long garden she went, through a stretch of wood which in her own youth Camilla had called the Whispers, across a rustic bridge which Camilla had forgotten was there, up a little hill, down on the other side into a grassy dell, and there, in a sheltered hollow, they saw a tiny house almost surrounded by hollyhocks. At Gwen's call, "Hey, you Pixen, company!" a tall bronzed young man came to the door and gathered the child up in his arms.

"John!" Camilla gasped breathlessly. "How long have you lived here?"

"I'm sleeping next door as per usual," he answered pleasantly. "This is where I do my work. I came early in the summer and your charming child has been to see me very often. She's priceless, Camilla."

"Yes, an' he teached me all about the Airy Faries and Krinken an' the Velvet Princess an' today he gived me this nice hollyhock book 'at he writed all hisself. Pixen an' me doesn't like that old doctor dragon, does, we, Pixen? We're glad he's runned back, isn't we?"

In their astonishment neither Camilla or her father had discovered that Dr. Beacon was no longer with them, a fact that brought immediate comment from John Whitmore.

"Dr. Beacon knew all about Hollyhock House and dear little Gwen's visits to me. He's a fraud, Col. Holbrooke. It was he who started the talk in the village about Gwen's being queer, hoping thus to get a hold over you and Cam. I—I've made quite a bit of money with my writings. I was coming up to Three Oaks this very afternoon to expose Beacon and to ask you to marry me, Cammie."

"Oh—Oh, John!" said Camilla, blushing furiously. "You, you were almost too late."

"See here, you young flower person," interrupted Holbrooke, taking Gwen by the hand, "suppose you show me hollyhocks on the other side of the house, will you? while these two folks renew their acquaintance."

Please, John Lose 20 lbs. as I Did

Why should not men as well as women keep their figures, their health, their vitality? Excess fat blights both alike. And normal conditions are as easy for one sex as the other.

About 30 years ago science discovered a great cause of excess fat. It lies in a gland deficiency which science can supply. Physicians the world over now treat obesity in this modern way.

That method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. Note the results in every circle. Ask your friends about them. Slender figures are many times as common as they were.

Abnormal exercise or diet is neither required nor advised, but moderation helps. Correct the cause. Simply take four Marmola tablets daily until weight comes down to normal.

A pamphlet in every package gives the formula complete. Also the reasons for the many good results. This is done to ward off any fear of harm.

Consider that Marmola has, for 20 years, been winning what you want in an easy, pleasant way. Don't you think it time to learn how much this scientific method means to you and yours? The cost is a trifle. You would gladly give many times as much for what a normal figure means. Then learn how easily people get it.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. Any druggist who is out will order from his jobber.

WOMAN DIES HIDING SHOOTING SECRET

The Prince of Wales - His Story

Guilty of Much Mischief During His Boyhood Days

Prince Often Punished for Pranks Perpetrated on Royal Guests

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

His Royal Highness, Edward, Prince of Wales, heir to the British throne, was born at White Lodge, Richmond, in Midsummer of 1894, the son of the Duchess and Duke of York, now King George V. It was in the early days of Queen Victoria's fifty-eighth year of sovereignty, and the first time in history that a queen could look upon a son, grandson and great-grandson, all in the direct line of succession to her throne. The Prince was baptized Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David. He was quite young when Queen Victoria died, but he sensed a great loss.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Edward P."

By WALTER and LEONARD TOWNSEND.

AS THE years passed the Princess of Wales discovered that "David" developed the usual propensities for mischief.

There were times when his governess found her Royal charges—"David," "Mary" and "Bertie"—something of a "handful," and stories of pranks played by the three Royal children are often fondly recalled today by Her Majestey the Queen.

PRINCE OF WALES

Sometimes, for instance, when lesson time came for the little Prince David his Governess would find him missing from the nursery. On such occasions the subsequent hue and cry would reveal "David" hiding in the bedroom of his mother—either in one of the capacious wardrobes or under the bed.

Then the Princess of Wales would become stern and forbidding to the young truant and when David was very naughty the "rod" was not spared.

Often, however, after giving him a good talking-to the Princess would ask his Governess to give him a day's holiday.

In the various escapades of the "naughty trio," David was always the ringleader.

One favorite trick of "David" and "Bertie" was to steal from their beds on the occasion of a ball being held by their Royal Parents and, loaded with wet sponges from the bathroom, creep along the gallery that circled the ballroom and drop these wet sponges on the sitting-out couples and then scamper back to bed well satisfied with their evening's work.

Once they even went farther than this and, procuring from some source a rather smelly fish tied a piece of string to it, and dangled it on the heads of guests sitting in secluded alcoves. But Nemesis in the person of their Mother overtook them and such punishment was meted out to them that it was some time before they transgressed in a like manner again.

It is, therefore, of interest to note that the gradual develop-

WE ARE taking the privilege of opening a letter addressed to Harvey J. Doyle in care of the Sun-Telegraph. It is from W. W. Winkler. Harvey Doyle hasn't been around the office for weeks and weeks. Filling in for him is the present writer who is sometimes known as Harry Doyle and Harvey Borel. Harvey Doyle, by the way, is not related either to Charley Doyle of our sports staff. Charley is two other fellows.

But anyway, Mr. Winkler writes interestingly of a large society in Pittsburgh called the Monroe, O., County Society of Pittsburgh, numbering about 900 men and women who transplanted their homes here. They are going to hold a picnic in Schenley Park, Septmber 8, and since Mr. Winkler is authority for the statment that a great many of the Monroe people read our daily dozen we naturally want to return the favor by mentioning the Monroe, O., folks. You'd be surprised at how chummy you get after writing a column.

THAT MAN WHO JUST PASSED IS HARVEY BOREL
YOU MEAN HARVEY DIYLE !

MR. WINKLER tells of a very interesting man who came from Monroe County, and if he is sure to be at the picnic, why we might take a run out ourself. His name is Baldy and there's a reason. A long time ago, after a spell of typhoid fever, this man lost all his hair and not only that but it seems his eyebrows also came out. Mr. Winkler emphasizes the situation by saying Baldy has no hair and winds up with this punch line: "And probably never will have any."

Asked to make a book on that, we'd lay a price of four to one.

Sam Jones, for many years a star pitcher with the Yankees, comes from Monroe county, and there are others, too, including the following well-known Pittsburghers: John A. Schrader, secretary of the Mercantile Appraisers' Board; Charles A. Hendrickson, for many years marriage license clerk. The Rev. Dr. Boeticher, the Rev. John L. Ernst, the Rev. O. D. Hempelmann. Also, John Weber, W. W. Feisley, John W. Ingold and H. F. Ingold, William B. Tipton, Bernard Zitsman and Dr. Louie Manly of Pitt.

A HOTEL man downtown tells us the biggest pest he has got to put up with is a gentleman who regularly tips a bell boy and asks that such and such a man be paged. The name called out is none other but the name of the gentleman who hands out the tip. The hotel man says the gentleman in question charges his tip up to advertising.

Some of the barber schools around town have "Free Shave" days. The subjects in these clinics are gentlemen known politely as bums, those fellows who loaf around Grant street near Second and Third avenues. They make fine subjects for the barber-students as they come with mattresses 10 days old and more and the practice thus obtained in clipping the dense foliage is much better than that obtained in simply chopping off a day's output of hair.

ONE of the bums suggested after having been washed up with a hair cut and shave that he thought the apprentice barbers were not getting much practice at giving massages and that he would gladly give up a little more of his time to submit to a massage.

Our Pittsburgh bums, in this connection at least, likely outrival any bums in the country. In fact, it is the boast of the local colony of bums that if ever a contest is held to determine what city has the finest bums, there are any number of Pittsburgh bums who will qualify as "Mr. Pittsburgh," and possibly, "Mr. America."

The picnic invitations continue to come in. The latest is from the Soho Board of Trade, Kennywood, Wednesday, P. F. McKnight, president. We get the same effect staying at home. Just spread a few ants over the dinner-table and then screech from the table: "Great Heavens, I think Oswald is lost again. Oswald—Os—waLD, Johnny, go find Oswald."

Young Hero

ROBERT MENGES

"Aw, what's all the fuss about?" complained "Bob" Menges, 13, of Pittsburgh, after he had rescued five persons whose boat had capsized in Chautauqua Lake, N. Y.

DO YOU KNOW YOUR OWN "TRAFFIC COP?"

RECOGNIZE HIM?

Honestly, now, if you were asked, could you tell the name of the traffic patrolman on your corner, the one who speaks to you when you pass by? The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, if you can't, will help you a bit. Each day there is published the photograph of one of the city's traffic officers. Here is one for today. His name tomorrow!

YESTERDAY'S "TRAFFIC COP" WAS TOM HOULIHEN, UNMARRIED, 2626 FILMORE STREET, WHO HAS BEEN A TRAFFIC OFFICER FOR 19 YEARS. HE IS AT PENN AND SHADY AVENUES, EAST LIBERTY.

HOOVER IN BOYHOOD TOWN

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.
International News Service.

WEST BRANCH, Ia., Aug. 21.—Herbert Hoover, as Republican nominee for President, met the farm problem face-to-face today as he returned to the place of his birth.

Thousands of farm leaders from all sections of the grain belt gathered here to hear Hoover expound upon his program for the relief of American agriculture. The nominee was to move on to Cedar Rapids after the speech tonight to hold a series of conferences there with the farm leaders. At Cedar Rapids, during a two-day stay, he will participate in a farm parade, lunch with farm editors and attend a real old-fashioned farmers' picnic.

At the end of the three-day visit to Iowa, the Republican nominee probably will have all the details of agriculture's problems. It was the hope of his advisers that while the farm leaders were discussing their problems with him, that his sympathetic attitude toward their situation would win them to the Republican cause. Thus far, the nominee has been successful to a remarkable degree in winning over those farm leaders with whom he conferred.

Hoover breakfasted in the house of his birth this morning, leaving his special train to visit the old homestead. He was accompanied by Mrs. Hoover and his two sons, Herbert, Jr., and Allan, besides a number of political advisers. During the morning he visited with old residents of his birthplace, some of whom he recalled from his childhood days, and took another look at the fishing spots, swimming hole and hunting scenes of his youth.

In touring through the Mid-West to reach Iowa, Hoover found Republican leaders pleased not only with his farm program, but with his stand on prohibition. In Kansas, especially, the Republican leaders lauded Hoover for taking the dry side of the prohibition question. His reference to prohibition in his acceptance speech, incidentally, was accepted on all sides as a dry pronouncement. Kansas, being one of the pioneer prohibition states, found the stand of Hoover particularly agreeable.

Lita, Divorcing Chaplin, Won't Deny New Romance

LITA GRAY

ROY D'ARCY

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 21.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN will have the lead role in a court scene tomorrow that lacks all the elements of comedy, and which costs him $750,000.

At that time his wife, Lita Grey Chaplin, will seek the final decree in the interlocutory divorce granted her on August 22, 1927. With it goes a court award of $750,000.

Reports that Mrs. Chaplin would marry Roy D'Arcy, film actor, were current here today.

Mrs. Chaplin said:

"It would be foolish for me to say we are going to be married, first, because Mr. D'Arcy is not in a position to do so, and, second, because one can never tell what will happen in the meantime. We have discussed the subject on several occasions, but have never reached a definite decision."

Ex-Envoy Harvey Dies

DUBLIN, N. H., Aug. 21. (AP.)—Col. George B. Harvey, ambassador, editor and maker of presidents, is dead at his summer home in Shallcross, Pumpelly Hill.

Death came suddenly late yesterday afternoon. Col. Harvey was in his sixty-fourth year.

A month ago he came here to seek relief in the high altitudes from asthma, which in recent years had afflicted him. He seemed on the road to recovery. A heart attack, however, brought death within a few seconds. Mrs. Harvey and his physician were the only ones at his bedside.

As editor of Harper's Weekly, Harvey fought for the nomination of Wilson for the presidency. Later the editor turned from his former friend to ally himself with the Senate irreconcilables in their fight against the League of Nations.

To his influence in breaking the deadlock at the Chicago convention, the nomination of Harding was largely attributed.

Harding appointed Harvey ambassador to the Court of St. James. There Harvey created several sensations. He appeared in ancient court dress discarded by American ambassadors for many years with a resultant flood of editorial jibes in this country.

At a Pilgrims' Day dinner he criticized the American response to Allied troop appeals in the early days of the war. The speech was severely censured in this country.

Harvey, who had started life as a newspaperman, rising from positions on the Springfield Republican and the Chicago Daily News to the managing editorship of the New York World, returned to journalism after his resignation from his London post shortly after the death of President Harding.

The Atlantic Coast states high pressure area is now well out off the coast, the disturbance that was centered over Nebraska is now over Eastern Ontario, and relative high pressure developed over the Rock Mountain states and most of the plains states.

The Ontario disturbance increased rapidly in intensity as it moved northeastward. The lowest barometer is 29.48 inches at Sault Ste. Marie. It produced showers and thunderstorms over all the Lake Region, Wisconsin, Iowa, Missouri, Illinois and Indiana. The rains were generally light.

There was a slight rise in temperature over the Ohio Valley states and the Lake Region, while over the plains states, following the rain storm there was a change to cooler.

Woman In Robber Auto

Accepting a "lift" offered by two men and a woman who drove past him while he was awaiting a street car at Hays Junction last night, Bert O'Beirne, 50, of 119 Whitaker street, Whitaker, was taken to the Hot Metal Bridge, Munhall, beaten and robbed of $35 and thrown from the car. He is at his home, suffering from deep larcerations of the scalp.

O'Beirne, a former Salvation Army officer in Homestead, is an insurance agent and had made a late trip to Hays Junction to visit a prospect.

He was found after the attack by H. E. McLean, of Homestead, who took him to the West Homestead Police Station. County detectives have a description of the trio.

WOMAN RESCUED IN BRADDOCK HOME FIRE

Fire caused $8,000 loss to a three-story dwelling at 207 Fifth street, Braddock, last night. Mrs. Betty Greene, 32, discovered the fire when she entered the kitchen after doing some washing in the basement. Smoke drove her back to the basement and firemen assisted her out a cellar window.

HELD AS UNLAWFULLY PRACTICING MEDICINE

GIFTS TO MILK AND ICE FUND READ LIKE BOOK

To anyone who follows regularly the gifts to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Milk and Ice Fund the list reads like a book of human interest stories. Nearly everyone tells a tale to the initiate who is able to read between the lines. Into the gifts from groups of boys and girls one reads good times, thought for others, unselfishness, and, according to the proportionate size of the group and the proceeds, ingenuity and business enterprise. Those gifts which bear merely the initials of the givers tell of modesty and a quiet philanthropy that desires only to keep itself out of the public eye.

Then there are those pathetic memorial gifts, which carry their story of grief and heartache and loneliness. How better can one find surcease from that grief and heartache than in doing something that will insure happiness to someone else? In what more fitting way could one perpetuate the memory of a loved child than in giving that another father's or mother's child may be saved to them? Three gifts are listed today, each one of which tells its story to any who care to read. "Jimmy" is the donor of $10. "E. D. C.," a beloved Woodland road mother who is a regular contributor, sends $5 and the last gift of $10 is made "In memory of my brother."

SHOOTING UNSOLVED, WOMAN DIES

CHARLEROI, Pa., Aug. 21.—"God knows who shot me."

Mrs. Josephine Bono, 33, died this morning at the Charleroi-Monessen Hospital with that final message to police before her lips were sealed in death.

Police, after a thorough investigation, still maintain that the woman shot herself, but are confounded by her continued refusal to admit that she fired a 32 caliber bullet into her abdomen in a suicide attempt.

ACCUSED DAUGHTER

Twice since her admission to the hospital last week, Mrs. Bono had accused Angelina, 17, her daughter, of shooting her while she slept in their back alley home at the rear of 228 Fallowfield avenue. Yesterday, however, Mrs. Bono denied that her daughter had shot her, shifting her garbled story to include an "unknown man" who dashed ino her bed room, seized a revolver from a table, fired, and fled.

This story police refused to believe when Angelina declared she was sweeping in an adjoining bedroom with the door to her mother's room in view. When the shot was fired Angelina rushed into the room and says the gun was lying on the floor beside the bed directly below her mother's extended hand.

Hospital authorities and doctors admit that the woman's mind was unbalanced because of illness and approaching maternity.

Mrs. Mary Castanza, aunt of the dead woman, today declared that Mrs. Bono, for years, had asserted she would die when she became 33 years old, the fulfillment of a fortune teller's prophecy. Yesterday was her thirty-third birthday.

Bono and his daughter, Angelina, released by police following an investigation, were again questioned today. Bono declared that his wife had often remarked that she wanted to die and was tired of living.

BLAST LAID TO MINE OWNERS

HARRISBURG, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—The explosion at the Coalport mine of the Irvona Coal and Coke Company, which caused the death of 13 miners last Wednesday, was due to the carelessness of the mine management, according to the report of the disaster transmitted to Walter H. Glasgow, state secretary of mines, by inspectors and made public today by the secretary.

The report said the company failed to use care in seeing that all provisions of the mining laws were carried out. The inspectors' report said the blast was caused by operation of an open type mining machine igniting an accumulation of gas at the face of No. 7 room.

Will Rogers Says

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Aug. 21,

A day hardly passes without somebody being notified of something. Notification speeches have just about spoiled what otherwise would have been a very pleasant summer.

If we got one-tenth what was promised in these acceptance speeches, there wouldn't be any inducement to want to go to Heaven.

Did you ever see such love and devotion to the farmer?

And Smith, when he accepts tomorrow night (as he probaly will), I bet he will tell how he and Tammany used to lay awake at nights just to think up ways to help the farmer skin the city slicker.

Yours, in sympathy for those that fall for all this,

LOCAL TAILOR REGAINS HEALTH

Feels Like New Person, Since Using Famous Ten Herbs, He Declares.

"I can honestly say that I feel like a new person since taking Ten Herbs," was the recent statement of Mr. Domenico Farrara, 408 Robinson Street, North Side, Pittsburgh, to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this famous medicine. "I hardly know how to express my gratitude for what Ten Herbs has done for me," continued Mr. Farrara, who is a custom tailor.

MR. DOMENICO FARRARA

"For several years my system had seemed to be clogged up. I lost my appetite and had to be careful what I ate, for fear of indigestion. Food would sour and ferment and I would bloat with gas. I had to keep taking physics because of constipation. I was so nervous I could not sleep —while lying in bed at night my whole body seemed to jerk. I lacked ambition and energy. Nothing I tried gave me satisfactory results.

"A friend, who had been helped by Ten Herbs, induced me to try your medicine. I have a better appetite now, and can eat almost anything without having distress afterwards. I am rid of sourness, fermentation, gas and bloating, and food seems to give me proper nourishment. Physics are only a memory now. I sleep soundly, without my body jerking, and in the morning feel rested and refreshed. My whole system seems to have had a thorough cleansing. I have more energy and ambition and even friends remark about the difference in my appearance. I gladly endorse Ten Herbs to the public and will be pleased to tell anyone personally about my experience with your medicine."

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Just 10 More Days Till "400" Starts Return Home, Then Fall Round of Weddings and Debuts Will Start

JUST 10 more days to September 1! Isn't that good news?

And with September 1 our society folks will begin to come back to the city they have deserted through the long, hot days of summer. And when there's a group of Pittsburgh's "400" in town, parties are just inevitable. And by this time a good many of us, I daresay, are yearning for some city entertaining, and debuts, and fall weddings, and gay balls. There's no denying the fact that summer resorts are beginning to pall a bit for many of us.

Every time you hear of a new debutante entertainment or a new wedding date, do you take heart again, even if it is a bit warm, and feel thankful that drowsy summer is just about at an end?

It looks as though one of the popular debutantes of the year will be Betty Berger Dunlap, daughter of the Will Knox Dunlaps, of South Highland avenue. Have you heard of the most recent entertainment planned for her? Mrs. Charles Arbuthnot, Jr., and Miss Elizabeth Shaw Arbuthnot will give a dinner for their debutante relative on November 9 in the Pittsburgh Golf Club. Just now Mrs. Arbuthnot and her daughter are guests of Charles Arbuthnot III, their son and brother, at Asheville.

EVEN though debutantes are beginning to monopolize the social horizon, there'll be news of summer society colonists for several weeks at least.

I've just heard that the R. B. Mellons, who are summering as usual at their Watch Hill home, are varying their summer with frequent motor trips. Recently they went to Cape Cod with their guests.

IN the good old summer time it seems as though one is always either a guest or a host. Just now Mrs. George Faber Downey, Jr., of Woodland road, Sewickley, is filling the role of guest at Southampton, and her hostess is Mrs. Edward Van Ingen. Just recently Mrs. Van Ingen gave a dinner at the Meadow Club there in honor of her guest, news has reached us.

FROM time to time we hear news of the Harry W. Croft family. Eleanor, who has been with her family at their home in Greenwich, has decided on a change from New England scenes, and is now at White Sulphur Springs, stopping at the Greenbrier, where there is an interesting Pittsburgh society colony.

LAKE PLACID one usually associates with tobogganing and skating and snow, lots of it. But Lake Placid has summer attractions, too. Mrs. Alexander J. Robertson is now enjoying summer society life there as the guest of her parents, the Carle Cotter Conways, of Scarsboro and New York.

Good old reliable tennis is much in vogue at Lake Placid. And now the annual August junior and senior tennis tournaments are being held at the Lake Placid Club. And one of the trophies to be awarded is the gift of the James H. Lockharts.

AFTER basking in the brilliant sun of the Mediterranean, Miss Coral Quay will sail, I've been told, on August 15 for home. While abroad she met Pryde Quay, of Bagni di Lucca.

WENLEY D. NELSON, son of the John E. Nelsons, of Murtland avenue, will be an usher at a fall wedding. And the wedding will be that of Jane McNeely Cochran, daughter of the George Perkins Cochrans, of Williamsport, and Edwin Maurice Ashcraft III on Thursday, September 6. Just now Mr. Nelson is abroad, but will return on August 31 to be in time for the marriage. He was graduated this June from Princeton, you know.

* * *

MRS. ALFRED E. JENKINS, of Pittsburgh, who recently returned from Europe, has decided to leave again. She is now at Spring Lake, New Jersey.

And another September date has been named for a wedding. September 12 is the date set by Elizabeth Dierks, daughter of Mrs. W. C. Dierks, of Edgewood, for her marriage to John O'Hara Anderson, son of the James M. Andersons, of Forbes street.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. JAMES M. LEWIS, of State avenue, Coraopolis, announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Alma Lewis, to Kenneth Richard Haley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Haley, of Beaver, at a bridge luncheon given on Friday by Mrs. Lewis. A fall wedding is being planned.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE W. DAVIS celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage at their Butler county home near Saxonburg recently with more than 500 guests present. Mr. and Mrs. Davis have spent the greater part of their lives in Pittsburgh. They have lived on Adams street on the North Side, and in later years in East Liberty and Carrick. They have four children, Mrs. Frank E. Johnson and Edwin Davis, of Louisville, Ky.; A. Laurence Davis and Mrs. Joseph T. Garden, of Pittsburgh.

* * *

AT an informal bridge party given by Mrs. Murray Dewart, Sherwood Forest Club hostess, and Mrs. W. E. Murray on Friday at the clubhouse at Sherwood Forest, Maryland, the guests included Mrs. E. T. Sloan, Mrs. H. F. Domhoff, Mrs. W. A. Korb, Mrs. J. L. McBride, Miss Bess Conley, Miss Rebecca Thorne, Miss Edith Bane and Miss Margaret Bowman, all of Pittsburgh.

THE marriage of Miss Mary Agnes Long, daughter of Mrs. Margaret A. Long, of Ramsey street, Carnegie, and James Omar Young, of the North Side, took place Saturday in the home of the officiating minister, the Rev. Dr. R. J. Miller, editor of the Christian Union Herald. Mr. and Mrs. Young left immediately on a northern motor trip, upon the completion of which they will make their home in Carnegie.

A MISCELLANEOUS shower was given recently in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Masur in Steuben street, West End, in honor of Miss Gertrude Foley, of Orchard street, Knoxville, whose marriage to Francis McKenna, of the West End, will be solemnized Wednesday. There were 50 guests.

* * *

MISS WINIFRED LALLY, of Murray avenue, Squirrel Hill, entertained at a bridge luncheon at Webster Hall Saturday afternoon in honor of Miss Teresa Ray McManus, of Fifth avenue, whose marriage to Scott W. Rudy, of York, Pa., will take place tomorrow at the Sacred Heart Church.

* * *

THE Kappa Delta Alumni Association played bridge at the Hotel Henry Saturday, following a business session. This winter the Hotel Henry will be the meeting place for the organization.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. T. W. HUBBARD, of Ewing avenue, Crafton, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Norma Emmalee Hubbard, to W. G. McWhirter, of Crafton Heights.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. W. C. GRAHAM, of the William Penn Highway, Wilkinsburg, and their family are at Piney Mountain Inn, Fayetteville.

* * *

MRS. J. S. MAHON, Miss Emma Mahon, Miss Janet Mahon, Miss M. L. McCance and Miss Margaret McCance are at the Kenilworth Inn, Asheville, N. C.

BELLEVUE OUTLOOK TO HOLD LUNCHEON

A LUNCHEON in the Congress of Clubs will open the season for the Bellevue Outlook Club on October 1. A varied series of programs, not the least interesting feature of which are the roll call answers, has been prepared for the year. There will be music, the usual greetings and the presentation of the year books at the opening luncheon. On October 15 the women will study the League of Nations and the World Court, each to be treated from three different angles. Miss Nancy Walter will appear before the club in November to discuss "Pennsylvania Art and Artists" and a Thanksgiving program will be presented at the second of that month's sessions. Papers by the members on "Italian Relationship" and "Italy's Dictator" will make up the study for December 3, while December 17 will be given over to a Christmas program. D. Helenda is the speaker scheduled for the first meeting in the new year, this to be followed by a charter member day later in the month. England, France and Germany will furnish the study subjects for the succeeding meeting and among topics which will come up for discussion at later gatherings are "Can the World Disarm?"; "How the Defense Societies Reply to the Disarmament Plan," and "The Pan-American Union." "My Hair Is a Fright"

Edna Wallace Hopper, the stage favorite, in her sixties still graces the footlights with the vivacious charm of a flapper. She knows the art of a lovely appearance. Miss Hopper in an interview remarks that women always apologize when trying on a new dress or hat. How many of them say, "Of course, it will look better when my hair is in decent shape."

So it is well to know that you can always keep your hair looking its best. Even the trying heat-record days of summer need not dismay you.

Miss Hopper with some forty years of stage work behind her, knows the tricks of attracting. Among the most important she rates a fresh, lovely wave. She has found the perfect curling fluid to keep your hair alluring regardless of circumstances.

Wave and Sheen, she calls it. A liquid dressing which is a godsend, especially during the summertime. It not only preserves the wave but gives your hair a soft, fascinating sheen. Try it on your freshly shampooed hair.

Money back if you are not delighted.

At all toilet counters, 75 cents.

THE PRINCE OF WALES—His Story

ment of His Royal Highness' character was prefaced by all the healthy, boyish delinquencies to be found in youth and which formed a foundation to the clear understanding of children which is one of his most attractive attributes today.

CHAPTER THREE.

School Days

WITH the death of Queen Victoria the young Prince David quickly transferred his adoring affection to his grandmother, Queen Alexandra, and she, consciously or unconsciously, followed in the footsteps of his mother by spending more hours than she could perhaps spare with her eldest grandchild.

"Grandma said I could do it" became a favorite excuse proffered by David to his mother when he was caught doing something which had brought reproof down on his head, and on his mother asking Queen Alexandra "Did you say David could do so-and-so?" the Queen would smilingly and perhaps a little sheepishly reply that she had given the necessary permission, thus saving her favorite grandchild from a scolding.

On one occasion Queen Alexandra, while at Sandringham, was taking the little Prince Edward out for a drive in her landau when suddenly he jumped up and pointed to a collection of school children who were holding an impromptu cricket match.

"Grandma, look," he cried. "May I go and play, too?"

But "Grandma" shook her head negatively, and so the little Prince had to continue his drive with many wistful glances backward. On the return journey the Queen stopped her carriage to call and see one of the villagers in whom she had taken an interest for many years. The little Prince she left in the carriage in charge of the attendant footman.

Wanted to Play Cricket

When Her Majesty emerged from the cottage some quarter of an hour later it was to find the little Prince missing, and after glancing round she saw a very distressed footman expostulating with Prince Edward, who was trying to induce the small cricket team that had previously inspired his interest to allow him to join the game. They, however, stood back rather frightened and respectful. Smiling slightly, Queen Alexandra relieved the unhappy footman of his mischievous charge and carried "David" back, much abashed, to the carriage. The drive home was a silent one, and was only broken by a whispered request from the little Prince:

"Please, Grandma, don't tell Mamma!"

Although the young Prince enjoyed himself to the full in his boyhood, spending his time between Frogmore (near Windsor), York Cottage, Sandringham and Marlborough House, London, there were times in even these carefree days when he felt the irksome pressure of sterner duties which were soon to cut short his boyhood days. On one early occasion when standing beside his father who was reviewing troops, sheer physical fatigue made him drop his little arms from the salute, but a look from his father brought his hand quickly back to his forehead. But even though from the time he was first given into the care of his tutor, Mr. Hansell, and he was being prepared for a wider life than could be obtained within the shelter of the Royal residence, the boy prince enjoyed to the full every hour of his existence, and since the possession of his first cricket bat and tennis racket he has always been devoted to every kind of sport.

Proficient Tennis Player

Queen Mary is responsible for his love of tennis—a game at which he is extraordinarily proficient but which of late years has been somewhat neglected in favor of golf, hunting and point-to-point racing. The Duchess of York (now Queen Mary) was passionately fond of the game and had special courts laid on which the royal children practiced. In these days "David" put more force into his play than skill as his father learned one day to his cost when a tennis ball came through the window of his study at York Cottage and played havoc on his writing table. When the duke went in search of the offender he was nowhere to be found!

His sister Mary was at that time much more proficient at the game and today owes her skill to the coaching of Mrs. Lambert Chambers.

Jeopardize Flower Beds

The Prince of Wales was always the leading spirit in the games of the royal children. Cycling was a favorite pastime of his, and he submitted his "Rudg" to the most strenuous tests. Many were the races which he arranged, sometimes, not exactly with his mother's consent — or knowledge! There were "The Ascot Cycle Stakes," for instance, held during an early Ascot week to celebrate, perhaps, his first bet at Ascot. During this particular race the young Prince pedalled like fury to make up the start which, chivalrously, he had allowed his sister, Mary; but for once, he, too, was an "also ran." Indeed, though the eldest, the Prince did not always "come in first" in the races he planned in youthful athletic attainments, Princess Mary proved more of a rival than his brother Albert.

A favorite pastime of the royal children at Sandringham was to play follow-my-leader on their bicycles—pedalling in and out of the flower beds. "David" invariably led, with Princess Mary close behind, and Prince Albert in the rear.

The flower beds usually suffered, since "spills" were common.

It was only when parents and governesses were out of the way that the "happy trio" could indulge in this most favorite of sports.

Prince Edward was always ready to admit his sister's superiority in many ways. He had an wholesome admiration for her cleverness, both in lessons and sports, over his possibly more brilliant and impetuous, though sometimes less well thoughtout, achievements. The little Prince, however, had even then a characteristic which may be called, to use his own favorite expression, "neck or nothing."

The story is told of an adventure which very well illustrates this trait. During an official visit to Bangor University, by David's strategy, the young Prince and his sister Mary escaped from the royal party just as the climax of interest was reached in the royal speech-making, to explore a nearby tower which has caught their interest.

Little Princess Mary, however, began to grow timid as they neared the top, for she was beginning to realize the enormity of their offense in breaking away from the ceremony. Her elder brother also respected authority, but his love of adventure got the better of him on this occasion, and he assured his companion that, having gone so far, they might as well "be hanged for sheep as a lamb." Reaching the top of the tower they looked down on the brilliant assemblage below.

Unhappily the crowd spotted them and the enthusiastic pointing upward caused the royal party to glance at the top of the tower and before David and Mary could hide they were spotted. A few minutes later an equerry fetched them to "face the music" before their parents!

Urges Prosecutor To Block Law Enforcement

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Aug. 21.—A request, made in all seriousness, that he prevent prosecution of Martins Ferry residents who violate Sunday laws, was made by two business men to Prosecuting Attorney Paul V. Waddell.

The men, apparently believing they had a legal right to operate their news stand and gas stations on the Sabbath, told the prosecutor he should take a hand in the Martins Ferry situation growing out of the attempt to run Sunday movies, and should prevent charges being filed against other concerns operating on Sundays.

Waddell explained that he could not prevent anyone from filing an affidavit and, in view of the laws against Sunday business, would not do so. This served only to annoy one of the men, who left blaming the official because his business was being imperiled by the attempt to enforce all Sunday laws alike in Martins Ferry.

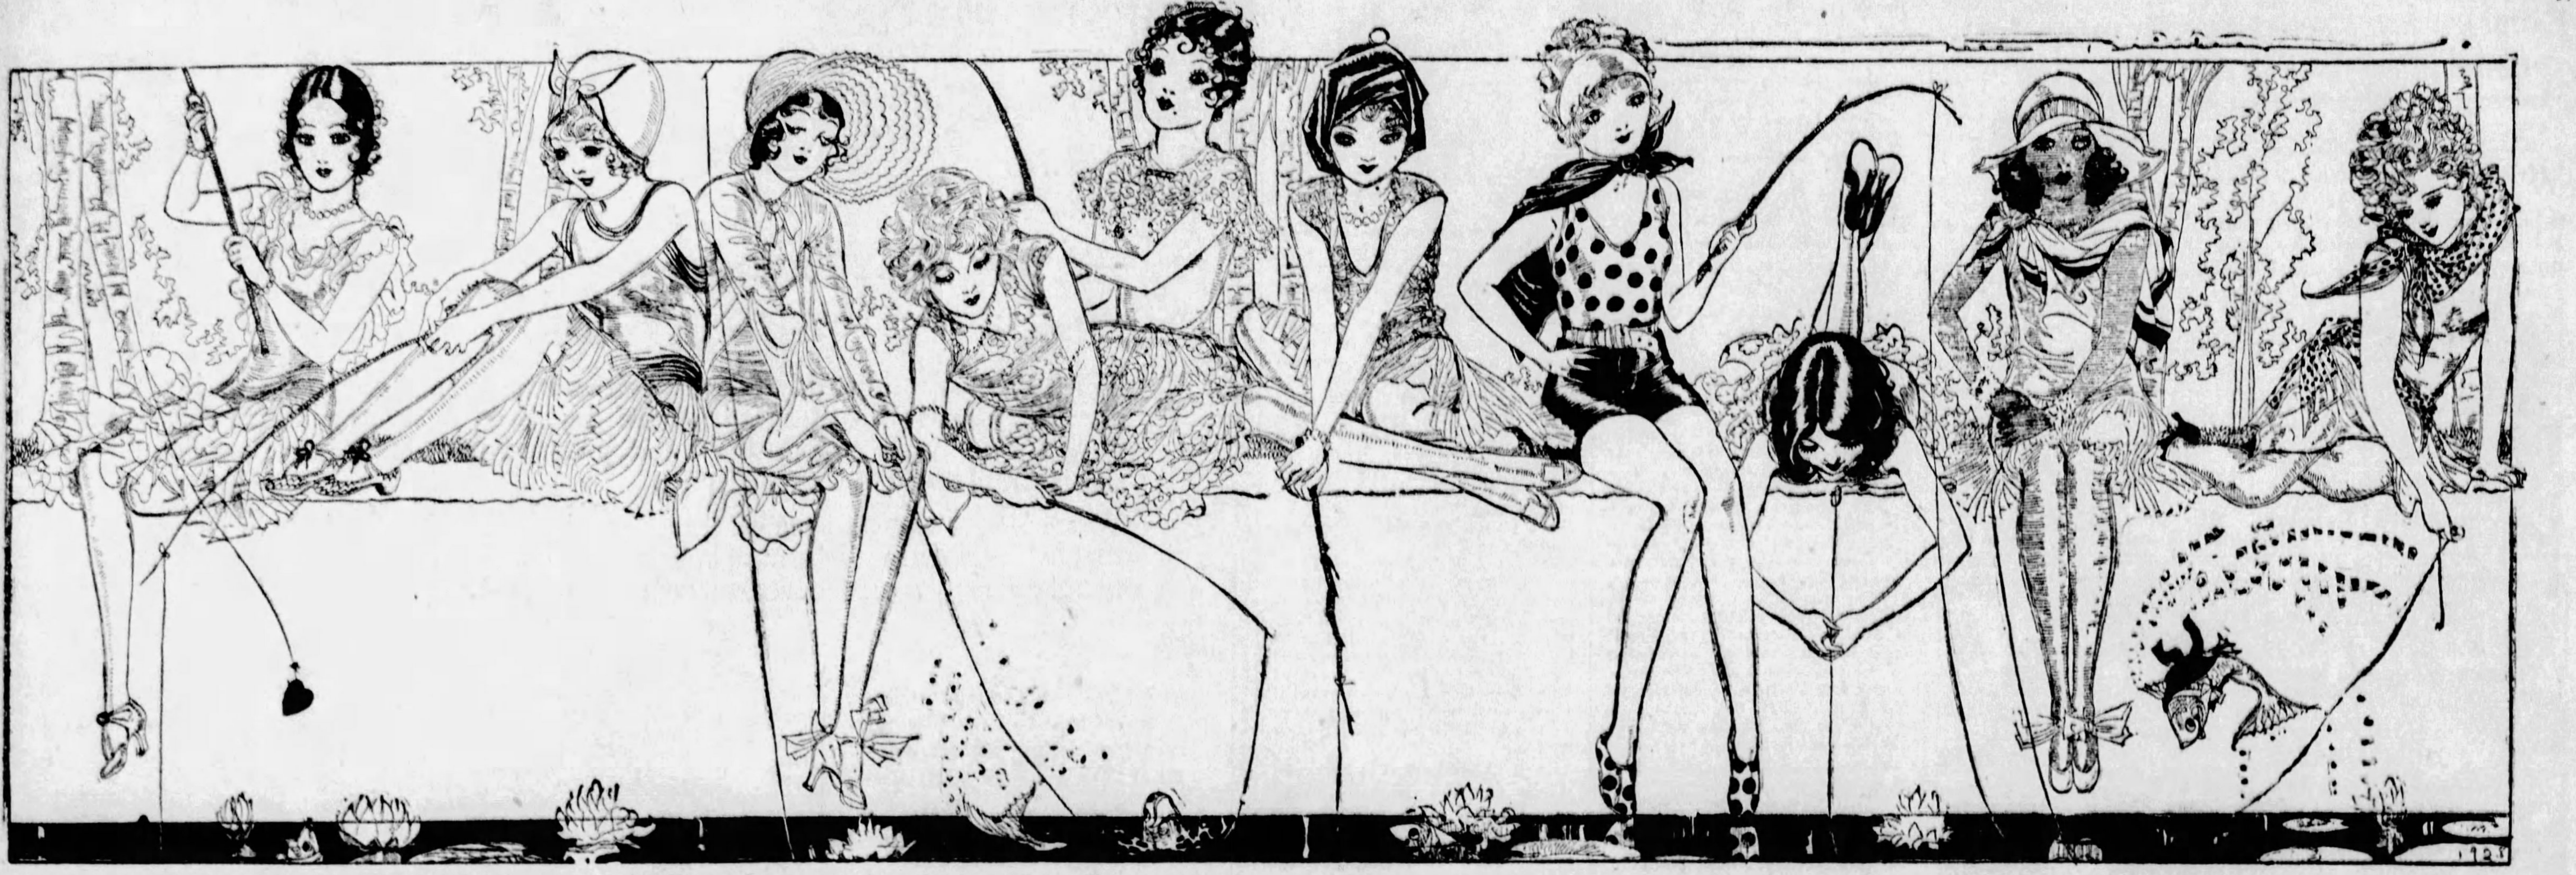
"ANGLERS ALL"—THEY FISH FOR CAREERS, FOR GOLD AND FOR HAPPINESS IN LOVE

Drawn by Nell Brinkley



EVEN if the pool of dreams itself had a "Private—No-Trespassing" sign on its banks girls would poach there for the gold and silver fishes that sport about among the lotus buds. GOLD fishes for wealth. Not always meaning a shy gentleman in evening clothes! My, no! The ardent wonder of most modern girls is how they are going to MAKE heaps of money—not how they are going to marry it? So—some fish for gold fish, we admit, in the clothes of a rich gentleman, and others fish for a plain gold fish, the shining prize of a goodly bank account, earned—oh, may it be pronto! Some fish for that elusive, fragilely precious finny one, the silver fish of Happiness in LOVE. Perfect Happiness in Love. A lovely ghost of a fish—just as perfect Happiness in LOVE is almost the ghost of a dream—a rare and precious elusion, so seldom captured in this world as to be almost unbelieved in along with the Dodo bird and Gratitude.

About the speedy, elusive swimmer, a Career, there is quite a bit of differing. Some say he is a lean and hungry skate with laurels and fame, but the look of a heartache in his eyes. Others, who have never had the pleasure of a glimpse of him, say he is a pompous, luxurious fish, delectable of flavor and sometimes sprinkled with quite a few glinting golden scales! They even say he has a silver one now and then. Very rare this. In all my wide-open-eyed life I have seen but one or two; this combination of a gold and silver fame-fish.

Fishing for dreams! For even though dreams-come-true are Things, things come from thoughts and go back again to them. And thoughts are only shapen dreams.

Yet knowing this—how mobbed the Dream-Pool is!

—NELL BRINKLEY.

HALF WIVES by Winifred Van Duzer

"Can't a Couple Live on Forty Dollars a Week?" Lan Asks

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ione Farr, just out of high school, gets a position with Max Weimar, a music publishing house in New York. Her chum, Marie Karey, is engaged to Palmer Elliott, a young lawyer, whom she later marries. She is always holding up as a model Ione's married sister, Jenepher, who has a small son and also holds a fine position in a smart New York shop. Benz, Weimer's office manager, takes Ione to Tin Pan Alley, where she meets the famous song writer, Wolfie Speed. Ione falls in love with Alan Blake, an accompanist, and they plan to be married as soon as Blake can support her. She is inclined to be jealous of Fluff Harwick, a new girl in the office. She feels that Jenepher is proving that a wife cannot hold down a job and run a household and do both successfully. She tries to be nice to Fluff, but the latter repulses her and she has her first quarrel with Blake on account of her. At Marie's house for dinner they learn all about a 50-50 marriage. Benz makes further plans to advance Ione. He tells her jobs are not handed out through friendship but ability.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

ON a capricious impulse she dashed up to her room and took from its hanger a new dress she had been saving for the next Sunday. It was the green of the willows down a springy corner of the woods lot. A blithesome thing with a strip of silver for a girdle.

"There—now I look like Spring, too," she told herself, flashing a sparkle at the girl in the glass. And she went dancing down the steps of the lower terrace to wait for Alan.

There was a train at nine-eleven. A twenty-minute walk from the station—nine-thirty-one. He would come at nine-thirty-one. He would come, he would come!

She counted the minutes, singing them as they went. And it was 9:31 and 9:50, and finally 10 o'clock, and still she waited on the steps alone.

She began counting till 10:25, not quite so gaily. But at 10:25 he was not there. And at 11 o'clock she stopped counting. Her arms stretched out on the stone step, her head went down on them and she sat there in the green dress, a slim daughter of Spring, quivering under the cruel touch of disappointment.

So she did not hear his step on the gravel; she did not see him bending down on her till he spoke.

"Why, little Io! Why, little sweetheart!"

He sat on the step, drawing her into his arms, touching her hair, running his fingers down her face.

"I came the first moment—you should have known I'd come! Don't ever doubt my motives, Io of my heart. Well—how about it tonight? Fast, now; most important—"

"I love you, dearest, darlingest. Always have, always will, always do!" She laughed. The night so dark with fears a little while ago was now all luminous.

"You're sure, Io? Sure forever and ever? So sure that you're willing to gamble with fate? Give up your bright and shining opportunity and your career and all you have made yourself for the sake of proving it?"

"Lanny! You mean—oh, you mean—" Radiance burst through her thought; it wrapped her in a soft glory, touched the budding hope that had been her heart and opened it to magnificent bloom. She put her hands to his face and drew it down, smiling, closing her eyes.

He whispered, "Ah, the darling! How soon, Io? Tomorrow? Day after? Here—forgot something—"

He fumbled at a pocket and caught her hand; she felt a ring on her third finger. A jewel, not large, sent out a brave gleam in the lights of the stars.

"Sweet! What is it, Lanny? So joyous it looks."

"Sapphire—blue for truth, Frills. Like your eyes. Some day I'm going to give you one really gorgeous."

But she kissed it and held it up for him to kiss and said she wanted nothing more lovely. It seemed a delicate thing to her, a beam running from his heart to hers.

"I s'pose there's something back of all this, Mister Lan? My two ears are wide open."

"Certainly. Do you know, I'd nearly forgot? Weimar's made me manager of the new branch. Not nearly so grand as it sounds, of course; I'll be only a sort of assistant. He'll oversee everything. Benz will take a hand. But that's only until I show 'em a thing or two. He promised that. And a $10 raise—can we live on 40 a week, Ione? Just for a while? Indeed, I wouldn't ask if I were not so sure it will be for only a while. Tell you, nothing can stop me now!

"It may be hard for you at first. Hard for me, seeing you doing without things when I want you to have only happiness and beauty, not the rough things of life."

"But I'll have you. That's happiness and beauty. We'll live like a king and queen on forty dollars! And—well, I've got a surprise. I've been saving a little now; enough to help with some furniture and things. Gee, aren't I gorgeous?"

He turned her about then so he looked into her face. He was very solemn and his voice, when he spoke was harsh. "You wouldn't do that to me, Ione! If you have money, it's yours, for yourself. Not for furniture or anything else about the house. I'll be wage-earner in my own home or I won't have one. Get it straight now for all time!"

He finished almost roughly, fingers pinching into her arms. Rather noble, she thought him, laying down the law; her senses sang with the thrill of being bossed by such fierce protectiveness.

"Of course," she laughed. "Why, of course, dear. I'll never do a thing you wouldn't like. We'll be happy—ah, you'll see!"

Tom and Janey came presently, carrying Timmy. And when Janey had put the baby to bed she called them to the table and they sat drinking chocolate and eating doughnuts. But it was not until Alan had gone down to the Lyall Inn for the night that Ione told her news.

She said, simply, "We are going to be married soon, mother—Tom."

Janey cried a little, seeing her home emptied now of daughters. "Well, he seems a fine lad, dear; a good boy. Perhaps you'd come and live here, then? A great lot of room in the old house and we'll miss you so."

"Now, don't you tempt the younguns, Janey. Their own home's the place for them, be it no more than a room or two. Though they're always welcome, as they know."

Tom said only that. But he called Ione before she went to her room; he tilted her chin up so her eyes met his.

"I'll not ask if you love him, lass, for you'd not have promised yourself to one before you were sure. But what sort of marriage are you going to make? What kind of home will you give the boy and what will you have it for yourself? It's for you to choose now."

"Yes, father. See, you're making me cry! Why, I want to make him the home Janey's made you, all sweet and kind. I'm going to quit work. That's what you mean?"

"Indeed, 'twill take all my time, dear Tom, being housekeeper and wife. He'll bring in the only pay envelope that's brought."

He dropped a kiss on the dark head, nodding.

PSORIASIS is a skin disease that takes the form of a localized patch of scaly skin on a red base. It is sharply defined at the edges. The patch is not unlike a scald of the skin upon which white scales have been spread.

The accepted view today is that these patches are the result of some sort of food poisoning, the failure of proper elimination of some given element in the body wastes, or to an infection from some pus center. Just why the skin poisoning should take this form nobody knows.

We are a long, long way from knowing a lot of things. This need not be discouraging. The commissioner of patents recommended to Congress 50 years ago that the bureau of patents be abolished, because, he said, "Everything has been invented that the mind of man can possibly think of."

Think of the things which have been invented in the past 50 years—the electric light, the telephone, automobile and airplane, the tractor, the radio. During the next 50 years, I have no doubt greater wonders will be revealed.

In the field of medicine wonderful discoveries will be under control. The span of life will be materially extended.

The skin diseases are puzzling. Take hives, for instanc, why do those swollen spots come after eating certain foods? I know a girl who would have giant hives if she took a single drop of cream.

Whenever the nose, the bend of the elbow, the prominent part of the cheek, or some other area, is the seat of repeated pimples, swellings, redness, scaliness or itching, there must be two conditions present. There is a local weakness, which may be due to an unperformed function of the skin, and then there must be some irritant or exciting substance, which comes through the circulation.

Of course there is a further possibility—that the irritation comes without, possibly from some unconscious habit.

But you can see how difficult it is to explain rationally these mysterious skin disturbances. The best thing to do, however, is to search the body in an attempt to discover any local infection which may exist and, failing in this, to eliminate one after another the articles of food which may be responsible for the trouble.

Your doctor will advise you as to the remedies required. But you will help him by studying your own habits to see if anything you do may be responsible for the symptoms.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

Eleanor Is Called to the Bedside of "Aunt Anna"

FOR a tense moment as Eleanor Lincoln swayed in the terrified remorse which Katie's news apparently had brought to her, I was afraid she would swoon. But in another second she had mastered herself, and was rushing toward the door.

"I must get home to Aunt Anna at once," she cried. But her hands were shakiing and her body trembling so violently that I knew she could not be permitted to drive to The Larches even if she insisted upon doing so. I wondered also whether she realized that now she was speaking of the dying woman as "Aunt Anna," while in her first reaction to Katie's message from Mrs. Ticer she had wailed, "Oh, my poor Anna! I have killed you with my folly."

I was at the outer door before she reached it, flinging a swift command to Jim to bring my own car to the side door. I put my hand upon her arm, holding her firmly.

"Jim is bringing my car immediately," I said. "I will drive you down very swiftly. You must not think of driving in this condition!"

She looked at me vacantly.

"I—I—can—drive,' she babbled. "I—must—hurry."

"Of course we must hurry," I told her reassuringly, giving her a searching glance to see whether there was danger of her collapsing before I got her to The Larches. But I saw that though she was trembling violently, her lips had a good color. Jim brought my car to the steps at that minute, and with a second thought, I bade him drive to The Larches, while I took my seat beside my pupil in the tonneau, and slipped my arm tenderly around her.

She slumped toward me as she felt the clasp of my arm, and I held her tightly until we had driven the short distance to The Larches. She made no further comment, but all the way she moaned softly to herself, all unconscious, I think, that she was uttering any sound. When we reached the front steps of the veranda, however, she stiffened her body and sprang to the ground ahead of me.

There was no one at the door, and with a direction to Jim to wait, I followed Miss Lincoln as she ran swiftly upstairs and into a room at the back of the house. It was a fairly large room, comfortably enough furnished, but not at all the sort of apartment which one would expect the mistress of a house or her nearest woman relative to occupy.

On the bed propped up with pillows lay a frail figure breathing heavily, apparently unconscious. Mrs. Ticer stood watching her, and her husband stood uneasily near her. Kneeling by the side of the bed with his head resting upon the bed clothing was the man to whom Eleanor Lincoln referred as "Uncle Henry," and who had been so rudely insistant upon paying for water when he came to ask for it at the farmhouse.

Mrs. Ticer put her finger to her lips as we came into the room.

"We telephoned for the doctor," she said, "and he'll be here any minute. He said to get a nurse, and Jerry's taken the car and gone after one. But I'm afraid—"

I shook my head at her. Mrs. Ticer is that dread of a physician and nurse, a prophet of the worst where there is illness. Knowing her pessimism, I had discounted her message when I had heard it, and now, looking at the unconscious woman, I was convinced that while undoubtedly she was most seriously ill, no doubt dangerously, yet she was not dying.

Eleanor Lincoln fell to her knees beside the bed on the opposite side to that where the man known as her uncle knelt, and buried her face in the clothing, shaking with sobs. And then the woman on the bed opened her eyes, tried to move a hand toward the girl's bowed head and said something in a language unknown to me, but I knew without question that the words were an expression of endearment.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

WHEN A MAN IS A "TEMPTATION"

"FANCY bathing suits for men," now being coquettishly displayed at Deauville, have got the moralists all wrought up. They are highly excited over the danger of threatening the morale of poor, weak women in the face of so much masculine sex appeal!

• • •

Ever since Eve, woman has been the temptress. But now it is MAN who is going to be the "pitfall" and "temptation!" Oo, la la!

• • •

Just HOW fancy or in what way "alluring" these masculine bathing suits are to be, the reports don't say. But it is safe to promise that no mere bathing suit will ever make a "temptation" out of the male form divine, unless it reaches all the way from the high sunburn-mark at his throat down past his toes and over his elbows.

HELEN ROWLAND

If there is any time when a man has NO "It," that time is when he is wearing a bathing suit. No fluttering ruffle above a knotty masculine knee could stir a woman's pulse. No low-cut "V" neck displaying a hairy masculine chest and peeling shoulders ever caused a woman's heart to skip a beat! No baby-blue striped bathing suit could make a square-cut elbow seductive and a pair of collar bones provocative!

• • •

Alas, man is most attractive to women when he is all COVERED up! When he is all groomed and pink and fresh from the hands of the barber, the tailor and the haberdasher, and camouflaged in blue serge and shining linen.

• • •

He is most "tempting" when his tri-colored neck (red, white and blue at the collar-mark) is hidden under starched white linen, and his brawny shoulders are softened by a nice, padded coat. He is most "demoralizing" in a boiled shirt and perfectly fitting evening clothes! Or in white plus fours!

• • •

The greatest shock of a romantic girl's life is her first sight of her "Prince Charming" in all the brutal frankness of a bathing suit. If anything would discourage women from marrying, it would be the vision of a lot of men on a bathing beach or the pictures in the garter advertisements.

• • •

And, believe it or not, the sight of a GIRL in her bathing suit has choked back the proposal of marriage fluttering in many a man's throat. Even the most beautiful of women is a hundred times more alluring in plenty of ruffles and frills than in the brazen bareness of a jersey bathing suit. It isn't what a man CAN see, but what he CAN'T see that piques his interest. The human form may be "divine"—but so are the hippopotamus-form and the kangaroo-form. Yet they have no sex appeal!

• • •

As for most women, they are romanticists and sentimentalists. Without love, tenderness and romance, SEX has no appeal for the normal woman. It is a woman's heart and vanity, not her head or her senses, that are WEAK!

• • •

Let the moralists cheer up. If a man has any sex appeal for the average woman, it will be in SPITE of, not because of his bathing suit.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, August 22

THIS day may predispose to restlessness and change, according to the predominant movement of the determining planets. And yet this tendency had best be regulated or kept under control if the best interests are to be subserved. Although if this adventurous spirit be involved in connection with new projects or in the interest of large corporations, combines or secret societies there may be benefits from these moves. It may be a day of curious occurrences or experiences.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of unusual or singular experiences, possibly in connection with large and close corporations or combines or in relation to secret organizations. These may involve change or travel.

A child born on this day may have a restless and adventurous disposition and may be endowed with qualities fitting it for diplomacy, stratagem or intrigue. It may likewise lean toward mystical and high artistic pursuits.

For the Lovelorn

Broken-Hearted Red

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have read your column for quite a while, and now I am going to ask you to give me some advice. I was going with a girl steady and we got along fine together until someone broke us up. It was a fellow who did it and I don't know him. He told my girl's sister I was drunk, which is a lie, because when I left her that night he said I was drunk and he saw me in that condition. I left her at 12 p. m. and was home at 12:45 a. m. I have never been drunk in my life. That is true. The problem is, Miss Gale, I want her friendship and loyalty back again. I want her love and care. She told me she loved and cared for me and I knew it was true. I love her and always will. I asked her if she believed them instead of me, and she said "yes," and that she was through with me. I can't forget her, Miss Gale, and I want her back. How can I win her and her love back? I think she still cares for me, as I've seen her several times on the street and she always looked at me for a second or two and then kept going on. Miss Gale, I am broken-hearted and want your advice as to how I can get her to come back. I've called her up, but it was to no avail. She was and still is my ideal, so please answer as soon as possible.

BROKEN-HEARTED RED.

If she loved you as much as she thought, she would trust you, Red. Leave her alone for a while and she may come to her senses again. Or if you prefer action, why not take the boy to her and insist that he tell the story in your presence? He will not be able to keep up the lie when he faces you, I am sure.

PIRATES SEEK REVENGE TODAY

DAWSON LEADS IN WESTERN

SPORT COMMENT

by JAMES J. LONG

Failure to Rest Maranville Costly to Cardinals—Pirates Guilty of Ragged Playing in Losing to Braves—Roberti Must Learn to Save Energy—McKeever Wants to Buy Robins.

ST. LOUIS fans who only recently were preparing to send their applications for world series tickets to Cardinal headquarters, but who now see their Redbirds in second place in the National League race, are trying to figure out the cause of the slump that led to the tumble of Bill McKechnie's outfit after 65 days at the head of the parade.

Rabbit Maranville

They may find one of the reasons in the fact that Rabbit Maranville was not given a rest sooner.

MARANVILLE who jumped onto the shortstop job early in the season, and played such brilliant ball that it was largely due to his efforts that the Cards reached the top, is nearing the 36-year mark and cannot stand the grind as well as he could when younger.

He was kept in the lineup until he was fagged and 10 pounds under weight, and the failure to take him out and rest him at the right time was at least a contributing factor to the Cardinals' slide.

DONIE BUSH'S ballers must be expected to have an off day occasionally, but they carried things to extremes yesterday. A club has got to play pretty bad ball to lose a game in which it makes 11 runs and 19 hits, so it isn't necessary to go into detail to show that it was the Bucs' own poor work, rather than Grimes' off day or the hitting of the Braves that caused the defeat. In spite of all the other blunders, the game might have been won but for the failure of Paul Waner to make a better attempt either to bunt or punch a third strike in the big seventh inning. Adams, ready to make a break for third on a batted ball, was caught off second as a result, and the double play probably knocked the Bucs out of enough additional runs to win.

SOME of the dopesters have been figuring that the present year will mark the end of a number of prominent sport figures, at least as champions or headliners in the various branches of athletic competition.

According to their line of reasoning, in addition to the retirement of Gene Tunney from boxing and Devereux Milburn from polo, Charley Paddock is done as a sprinter, Lloyd Hahn and Joie Ray will withdraw from the running game as a result of their defeats in the Olympic games, Clarence Demar must quit the same sport on account of age and heart trouble, Bill Tilden can no longer hope to lead the field in tennis even if he is declared an amateur finally, and Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker and Eddie Collins have played out their respective strings in baseball.

Jack Quinn

BUT you can't always tell in Sportdom. Occasionally some figure for whom the exit has been opened defies the old man with the scythe and refuses to pass out at the time assigned.

For instance, there are May Sutton Bundy, 41, who after an absence of three years from the game, came back in tennis last week and won the women's Eastern championship over opponents who had not yet been born or who were babes in arms when she won the women's championship of the United States in 1904 and the Wimbledon title a season later; Jack Britton, almost 43, former welterweight boxing champion, who, since his return to the ring, has won eight out of nine bouts, and Jack Quinn, admitting 43, but in reality beyond 45, it is

FIGURES IN NEW YORK'S CLIMB TO CREST

The National League's newest slab sensation is Carl Hubbell, rookie southpaw of the New York Giants, who has shown brilliant form in recent starts and who has played a prominent part in the McGrawmen's climb to the loop crest. Hubbell came to the Giants from the Beaumont club of the Texas League late in July and made his first start against the Pirates. The Bucs drove him to cover in less than two innings, but about two weeks ago he was given another chance as a starting pitcher, and since that time his work has been sensational. In his last two starts he has blanked the Phils, 4-0, and gained a 3-2 decision over Grover Alexander in a great mound duel. His latest success, in St. Louis Saturday, paved the way for the Giants' advance to the top on Sunday.

GRACEFUL

Hubbell has an easy, graceful delivery that enables him to toil at top speed inning after inning. A deceiving cross-fire is his "ace in the hole." Hubbell probably will be seen in action here the latter part of this week when the Giants invade Pittsburgh for a series with the Bucs.

GIANTS GRAB SCOTT FROM TOLEDO

CINCINNATI, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—John McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, grabbed the baseball spotlight today with another one of his breath-taking deals in the thick of a hot campaign. He announced that Jack Scott, formerly a star with the New York club, but since consigned to the minors as dead wood, has been secured from the Toledo club of the American Association in exchange for Bill Walker, promising young southpaw.

This same Scott made an amazing comeback with the Giants in 1922. Released by Cincinnati because of a sore arm, he was given a job by McGraw and helped pitch the Giants to a championship. After the 1925 season Scott was traded to the Phillies, but lost his stuff and drifted back to Toledo. The old Carolina farmer enjoyed a new lease on life this season, however, and McGraw believes he can again weave his wizardry over the big league sluggers.

Walker was sent to Toledo on option. Many baseball men declare the Denver recruit eventually will become a star of the first magnitude on the big-time circuit.

CHILLY SAUCE

By CHILLY DOYLE

THE Cardinals appear to have won an important engagement yesterday in copping a game from Ol Dazmarine and the Dodgers. True, the Giants won another and held their first-place position, yet there was a spunky gesture in the triumph of a club that had just taken three exasperating setbacks at the hands of its principal rival.

A club lacking championship qualities would not be fighting as hard as the Redbirds in their crucial games. They had their backs to the wall in the encounter with Dazzy and they came through with one of those hairline victories.

THE Giants are having their only successful invasion in three excursions to the West. They started poorly by losing two out of three to the Cubs, but they have copped four in a row and seem to be in fine spirit.

The one and only McGraw circus will be in Pittsburgh during the last three days of the week. The Giants will tangle with the Pirates in a double-header on Thursday, and this dual fight is sure to provoke interest.

THE Pirates could put over a bold stroke toward overtaking the leaders by winning three of the four games. On the last visit of the Giants to Forbes Field they were "taken" in such a manner by the Oaklanders.

It will be said, perhaps truly, that Burleigh Grimes did not have his stuff yesterday. But, in the last analysis, was it inferior pitching on the part of Grimes, or superior hitting by the Braves? Whenever a pitcher is pounded, we writers generally declare that the slab choice was off form.

THERE was a certain sureness about the Hornsby offensive of yesterday that might have trimmed an Alexander or a Vance. From

DATTO STOP CARPENTIER

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Aug. 21.—Johnny Datto, of Cleveland, stopped U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, in the fifth round of their 10-round bout here last night. A right to the jaw sent Carpentier to the canvas and the bell ending the round rang before the referee had completed his count. When Carpentier was unable to start at the bell for the sixth, seconds tossed a towel into the ring.

Giants' New Ace

SCORES A 33, EVANS SLUMPS

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—An overnight rain that soaked the course, then gave way to a brisk wind, made scoring a trifle more difficult today in the second qualifying round of the western amateur golf championship. However, Chester Williams, of Chicago, among the early starters, reached the turn in 34, or two under par, while others were close to par.

The British Walker cup team members expressed a liking for the conditions, but most of them were late starters. It seemed likely that a total of 152 for yesterday's and today's round would be required to qualify for match play.

Johnny Dawson, of Chicago, who had a par 72 on the first 18 holes yesterday burned up the course on the first nine of today's round with a 33, three under par. He missed two 6-foot putts for a 31, and bagged four birdies, four pars, but was one over on the par 4 fourth.

CHICK EVANS SLUMPS

Chick Evans slumped from his first-round speed, taking 39 on the first half today, while Maj. C. O. Hazlet, of Great Britain, his partner, scored 38 to add to his 77 of yesterday. Dawson, with 105 for 27 holes, had a comfortable lead to that point with some of the other leaders in the first round still to report.

Eustance Storey, of the British Walker Cup team had a 39 on the first nine, as did his partner, Rudy Knepper, of Chicago. Storey scored a 76 yesterday and Knepper a 77.

T. H. Torrance of England made the turn in 38 while his partner, Dr. O. F. Willing, of Portland, Ore., and a former member of the American Walker Cup team, was out in 37. Willing was wielding his iron in a fashion that layed the ball dead to the pin, but he was off on putting.

Jimmie Manion, of St. Louis, who scored 36-40—76 in the first round, today reached the turn in 35 with 3 putts on the ninth green.

Dr. William Tweddell, of Great Britain, was not quite so good today as yesterday when he scored 73. He took 39 to reach the turn today, while his partner, Frank Dolp, of Portland, who was tied for second place at 71 with Chick Evans, took the same number of blows.

HACK WILSON SUSPENDED

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Hack Wilson, the Chicago outfielder and National League home run leader, has been suspended for three days "for an outburst against the umpires yesterday," John Heydler, league president, announced today. Perce Malone, Cub pitcher, drew a $50 fine for using "abusive language from the bench." Wilson objected to a strike called by Umpire Pfirman yesterday as the Phillies were trimming the Cubs 11 to 6.

MAY HEAD HAWKS

MONTREAL, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—A report that Hero Gardner, veteran defense man of the Canadian hockey team in the National League would manage the Chicago Blackhawks of that circuit next season has been printed here. Gardner is one of hockey's "Iron Men" because of his ability to play full games at top speed without relief. Two seasons ago he was awarded the most useful player prize.

BUCS MUST BRACE TO STAY IN FIGHT

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

THE National League race is reaching such a point as to deem it imperative for the Pirates to make better use of their opportunities than they did yesterday if they are to get up with the leaders. The Buccos are slated to meet the Braves this afternoon in the second game of a series that fans hoped would bring better things.

Five misplays of the hand and several other slips were charged against the Buccos yesterday as they made their runs reach double figures while losing to the tribe. In some respects the club, in view of the terrific pace it has kept up for a month and in the face of second-string men in regular roles, was due to have a bad day, but it is hard for the rooters to overlook the various spectacles that showed yesterday in a three-hour fight.

Perhaps the strain was having its effect on some of the players. Burleigh Grimes, for instance, was a mile off his regular stride. The star pitcher of the two big leagues was out to get victory No. 22 and the spitballer was "bearing down" in his characteristic manner, yet the Braves were able to nick him repeatedly.

BRANDT TO HURL

But now that the sour stuff is out of their systems perhaps the boys will be able to show better during the remainder of an exciting week. The Buccos, however, will have to solve Southpaw Eddie Brandt this afternoon if they are to be assured of victory. Brandt will be on the mound for the Braves in the second contest. Remy Kremer will twirl for the Pirates.

Grimes and Bob Smith started out yesterday after the manner of a couple of slab stars who would go right down the line to a decision. But as the contest progressed it swung from a mound duel to a slugging contest.

In their bad display the Pirates won many onlookers by the determined fight made in the seventh inning. The Oaklanders went into the round with an eight-run deficit, but ere they had been retired they counted seven times and had the tying run on the sacks.

A bunt play that went awry and resulted in a double play hurt the home team. With runners on second and first and two runs needed to tie, P. Waner missed a third strike attempt to bunt and Sparky Adams was doubled off second. Grantham followed with a single that put the tieing run on the sacks again, but Arthur Delaney, rushing to the rescue of Johnny Cooney, retired Traynor and then pitched two

JOINS ACE-HOLERS

WAYNESBURG, Aug. 21.—J. N. Zahniser of this place achieved the dream of all golfers yesterday when he joined the hole-in-one club by scoring an ace on the fifth hole at the Greene County Country Club. The hole is 140 yards long and has been made in one stroke three times before.

the top of the batting order right down to and including Bob Smith—who is a real hitter—the Braves had a confident mien as they faced the Pirate ace. Richbourg, Jack Smith, Sisler, Hornsby, Mueller, Bell, Farrell, Taylor and Bob Smith were a formidable array in the opening of the series. On sober thought I think it was a case of better batting rather than mediocre pitching.

Glenn Wright stepped up yesterday and whacked out a hit in a pinch that had a lot to do with putting the Pirates in the old ball game. Wright is almost recovered from his spiked foot. Unless the team gets into a winning stride quickly the shortstop with all the buckshot is likely to get right back on the job.

MEANTIME, Sparky Adams does not have to doff his cap to any player in the National League in the point of value in the past two weeks. The performance of the little infielder on both sides of the keystone sack in that period has been especially consistent and brilliant.

W. VA. TO OPEN CAMP SEPT. 1

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Aug. 21.—With the announcement by Stansbury that the opening of the varsity football training camp had been moved up from Thursday, August 30, to Saturday September 1, on account of the late departure of about 200 girls from the State 4-H camp, a change was also necessary in the plans for taking care of the limited number of freshmen who were to be taken to camp at the week-end.

The first-year candidates have been notified to be on hand not later than Monday, September 3, and will have their original workout on the training grounds.

In the meantime, the varsity, outfitted on Saturday morning, and having two workouts on Saturday with a rest period over the Sunday, will have the fields for unlimited practice until the freshmen get going on Monday afternoon.

Altoona Race Officials Pay $4 Fine

ALTOONA, Pa., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Fines of $4 and costs were imposed on five persons connected with the Altoona speedway when they appeared before an alderman late yesterday and waived hearings on charges of violating the "blue laws" as a result of the 200-mile international speed sweepstakes at the track on Sunday.

Those fined were Pauly Sheedy, manager of the speedway; Val Harescape, starter; Harry E. Emerick, program manager, and Francis Straney and Edward Martin, operators of concessions.

The validity of an injunction enjoining track officials from holding the race, but signed on a typewriter with the name of Judge Ward Fleming of Center county is held in doubt.

runless and hitless frames. Meantime the Braves collected two more runs and at the finish romped off the field with a 14-to-11 success.

GRIMES HIT HARD

The Boston boys were hitting Grimes so effectively in the sixth that Joe Dawson went to his relief. Joe was struck on the leg with a batted ball and in the following round he was relieved by Recruit Elmer Tutwiler, who recently came to the Pirates from the Savannah club. The youngster was lifted for a batter in the same frame, and therefore was not on the mound long enough to make an impression. Fred Fussell finished for the Pirates.

SCHENLEY PARK CADDIE TEAM IS SELECTED

Steve Slivika, new Schenley Park public links caddie champion, who also captured the Sub-Junior Class honors in the first annual The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph William Randolph Hearst Junior Tournament; Fred Onoratta, brother of Charles Onoratta, well-known local professional; Ray Di Pietro and John Kuzma have been selected by Andy Petrolia, caddie master at Schenley, to represent that club in the second annual Western Pennsylvania caddie championship to be held under the auspices of the W. P. G. A. at the Pittsburgh Field Club next Monday, he announced today.

The Schenley team won the John Latta Jamison Memorial trophy last year and will defend that honor this year.

AMERICAN SWIMMERS WIN IN VIENNA

VIENNA, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Americans won two first and two second places in an international swimming meet yesterday between a contingent of Olympic aquatic champions and Hungarian representatives.

George Kojac, of New York, won the 100-meters back stroke event, but finished second to Arne Borg, of Sweden, in the 100-meter free style. Borg covered the distance in 1:00 3-5. Barany, of Hungary, was third.

Borg also took the 300-meter free style swim in 2:34 8-10. Clarence Crabbe, of Honolulu, finishing second.

In the women's events, Martha Norelius, of New York, won the 400 meters event.

U. S. YACHT WINS

LONDON, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Official figures on the Fastnet Cup race shows that Nina, the speedy boat owned by Paul Hammond, of New York, won by a comfortable margin. The French boat Jolie Brise was second, and the American yacht Mohawk, third.

Mrs. Bundy, Molla Star

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—The first appearance of Miss Helen Wills in defense of her title and a series of intersectional matches, together with the beginning of doubles play, will feature competition in the Women's national tennis championship today. The schedule of matches to be played in the Stadium courts follow:

Helen Wills.

2 P. M.—Mrs. Molla Mallory, New York, vs. Miss Carolyn Schwartz, Berkeley, Cal; Miss Edith Cross, San Francisco, vs. Miss Marjorie Gladman, Santa Monica, Cal.

3 P. M.—Miss Helen Wills, Berkeley, Cal., vs. Mrs. J. Saunders Taylor, New York; Marjorie Morrill, Dedham, Mass., vs. Mrs. J. D. Corbierre, Boston.

4 p. m.—Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, of Santa Monica, Cal., and Miss Helen Jacobs, of Santa Barbara, Cal., vs. Miss Anne Townsend, Philadelphia, and Miss Gladman. Mrs. Charlotte H. Chapin, Springfield, Mass., and Miss Penelope Anderson, Richmond, Va., vs. Miss Clara Greenspan, New York, and Mrs. William R. Pritchard, New York.

5 p. m.—Misses Sarah and Mianne Palfrey, Boston, vs. Miss Sara E. Wright, Frostburg, Md., and Miss Violet Doeg, Santa Monica, Cal., Mrs. L. A. Harper, Los Angeles, and Miss Edith Cross, San Francisco, vs. Miss Florence Leboutillier and Miss Barbara Stoddard, both of Westbury, N. Y.

FORMER CHAMPS WIN

Three former champions who reigned supreme many years before Helen Wills came out of the West, featured the opening day of play in the national women's tennis championship yesterday by putting on a remarkable exhibition of the kind of tennis that defies time.

One after another with ease and poise Mrs. Molla Mallory, Mrs. May Bundy and Mrs. Hazel Wightman swept through their first round adversaries in straight sets and with a display of consistently good tennis which recalled the best days of Molla Bjurstedt, May Sutton and Hazel Hotchkiss.

Most impressive of all was Mrs. Bundy, slim, trim and agile, who bounded all over the court, smashing at the net as well as driving from the baseline, to down Charlotte Miller, of New York, without the loss of a game.

A few feet away on the next court Mrs. Mallory at the same time was playing Gene Burritt, of Toronto, whom she defeated by scores of 6-0, 6-2.

While Mrs. Bundy produced her best all-around game and Mrs. Mallory all her hitting power, Mrs Wightman relied upon the canny position and placement play which have made her one of the greatest tactical masters of the game in defeating Miss Mayme MacDonald of Boston, 6-2, 6-1.

Mrs. Wightman, who was one of the first to see the championship possibilities of Helen Wills and who will pair with her in the doubles play which starts today, is to encounter Miss Clara Greenspan, young New York player, in the second round.

HELEN JACOBS VICTOR

Most of the young invaders from the far West fared well in the first round play as did all of the seeded entrants.

Miss Helen Jacobs, of Santa Barbara, Cal., who is seeded below Miss Wills and Mrs. Mallory, duplicated the feat of Mrs. Bundy, her fellow-Californian, by scoring in love sets at the expense of Miss Marie Fensterer, of Englewood, N. J.

Seaholtz To Direct Scotties

CUMBERLAND, Md., Aug. 21.—The Colts lost ground to the Fairmont Black Diamonds here yesterday and hold first place by a scant half game as the result of a 9 to 3 setback. Cousins held the locals to four hits. The Diamonds pounded out 14 from the delivery of Herrell.

Clarksburg lost a 6-to-4 decision to Scottdale at Clarksburg. President Petonic, of the Scottdale club, announced that William (Dutch) Seaholtz, former Lafayette grid star, had been appointed manager of the Scots to succeed Mike Flaherty, who resigned last Saturday.

At Wheeling, the Stogies beat Jeannette, 4 to 1, Classet giving the Jays but four scattered hits. Lowell, Stogie first sacker, had three hits and two runs out of four trips to the plate and played a bang-up game in the field.

Johnstown beat Charleroi 8 to 3 at Johnstown, further blighting the flag hopes of the Governors, who are in third place, two games back of Fairmont. Six runs in the fourth inning won the game for the Johnnies.

Roberti to Meet Sharkey in Brooklyn

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Having beaten Tex Rickard to the draw in the promotion of the first bout of the heavyweight tournament that is to result possibly in a successor to Gene Tunney, Humbert J. Fugazy today completed plans for his second elimination bout.

This time Jack Sharkey, the Boston strong boy, is to be the opponent of Roberto Roberti, Fugazy said. Both Sharkey and the Italian have agreed on the bout, which probably will be held some time early in September, he said, at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn.

No contracts have been signed yet, but the final arrangements are to be completed Saturday.

THE VARSITY COLUMN

by JESS M. CARVER

THE close and exciting races for the pennant in both the National and American Leagues, with the two New York clubs fighting to make the world series an all-New York affair this fall is going to cause somewhat of an early laxity of interest in the 1928 football campaign.

Strange as it may seem, football fans are usually always rabid football followers. Maybe it's the fact that you can eat hot dogs at both games that makes 'em so, but it is never the less, a fact.

Pittsburgh seldom warms up to football before the middle of October. Last year, of course, with the Pirates in the fight (?) for the world series honors, this is readily discerned. But the fans do not patronize with any degree of interest the warm-up games that are annually carded by both Pitt and Tech.

TODAY'S news carries the information from Morgantown that the Mountaineers have set back the date of their departure for training camp from August 30 to September 1, which will send them into action just two days before Pitt and Tech get going. The West Virginia plans had called for the Rodgermen seeing action earlier than any of the other major schools in this territory. The Conference schools are not permitted to start practice before September 10.

It will be interesting to see where the balance of football power will swing to in this coming campaign. Last year, Eastern strength was located at New Haven and at West Point. In the South, Georgia Tech and Georgia held sway. Pitt and Wash-Jeff ruled this territory and in the Middle West, Notre Dame and Illinois were supreme.

ON THE Coast, Stanford and Southern California were the bosses though two minor league clubs took Pop Warner for a fall. As usual, the Far West successfully met the challenge of the Eastern invaders in the post-season struggles, both Pitt and Pennsylvania being defeated while Carnegie Tech got a tie with the Oregon Aggies.

As far as can be doped at present, the Eastern champion is going to be crowned from one of four teams. Yale is a good bet to repeat its 1927 triumph. The Army and Navy will both be strong—and there are some indications to show that it may be a Navy year. N. Y. U. rates title regard. It is hard to get a line on the Southern elevens, though the Yellow Jackets can always be counted on for a strong eleven.

In the Big Ten, Illinois, Chicago, Pat Page's Indianans and Doc Spears' Minnesota charges will bear watching.

Out on the Coast, they say that Warner is anticipating a great year and that both California and U. S. C. will be as strong, if not stronger than last fall.

THE two track and field meets scheduled for this Saturday, the Police meet out at the Stadium here and the P. R. R. championships at Pitcairn will ring down the curtain on track in this section for the year.

The meets are fitting last act affairs, with the entry list for both of high order. The Police meet combines open and department championships, while the railroad carnival is a regional event.

NOTES of the BOXERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Another boxing title was vacant today through the voluntary resignation of Bud Taylor, Terre Haute, Ind., from the bantamweight title of the National Boxing Association.

Taylor's manager, Eddie Long, telegraphed Jess McMahon, matchmaker of Madison Square Garden, saying that henceforth the blond boxer from Indiana would seek a championship bout with Tony Canzoneri, the featherweight champion.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—Matchmaker Jess McMahon, of Madison Square Garden, today was laying plans for a bantamweight elimination tournament as a result of Bud Taylor's voluntary surrender of his national boxing association bantamweight title.

Entrants in the elimination tourney probably will include Bushy Graham, of Utica, N. Y., now generally recognized as the leading contender for the world championship; Kid Francis, Italian boxer, and Al Brown, a Negro.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Bushy Graham, slight Utica, N. Y., boxer, recognized by the National Boxing Association and its 28 member states as bantamweight champion, enters the ring tonight for another 10-round test before tackling Fidel La Barba, former flyweight champion, next month. His opponent will be the seasoned Californian, Joe Lynch, of San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, was taking things easily today while his trainers were treating a muscle he injured in his side when he fell from his training ring Sunday. Walker expects to resume boxing Thursday. He and Armand Emanuel, Jewish light-heavyweight, collide in a 10-round bout here next Monday night.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—(INS.)—Young Corbett, sensational Pacific Coast welterweight, will leave Monday for New York where he has been matched to fight Sammy Baker on September 13.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Dave Shade, the San Francisco middleweight, won the decision over Joe Anderson, of Cincinnati, after 10 rounds of fast fighting at Hills Stadium last night. After the bout he announced he had signed with Promoter Mike Malloy, of Chicago, to meet Mickey Walker for the world's middleweight title here this fall.

WILKES-BARRE, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Unable to get a substitute for Mike McTigue, who sent word Sunday night that he had injured his arm in training, Morgan Bird, local fight promoter has called off the match scheduled with Willie Stribling for tonight.

Stribling spent yesterday piloting newspaper men over Wyoming Valley. He was told that Champion Tommy Loughran was expected to visit friends at Harvey's Lake. Stribling flew to the nearby summer resort and dipped his plane over the lake in front of the camp where Loughran trained for his match with Pete Latzo last month.

FITZGERALD, COLUMBO DRAW IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Freddie Fitzgerald, of Youngstown, and Joe Columbo, of Clarksburg, W. Va., fought 10 rounds to a draw here last night in one of the most sensational settos witnessed by local fandom. Fitzgerald landed the heaviest blows, but his opponent's fast stepping and jabbing kept him on even terms.

In the semi-final of eight rounds, Johnny Vido, of Pittsburgh, won the decision over Joe Todd, of Donora, in a fast and interesting affair.

Harry Spencer, promising local lad, scored his fourth knockout in as many starts when he disposed of Tom McCaffrey, of Fairmont, W. Va., in the fourth round of a scheduled six-rounder.

Dave Organ, Washington, staged a comeback after being on the verge of a K. O. in the opening round, to win by a technical knockout over Johnny Francis, of Fayette City, in the third round of the opening bout.

SPORT COMMENT

By JAMES J. LONG

said, who is one of the leading pitchers of the American League.

And that's not mentioning Dan O'Leary, 82-year-old walker, and some others.

THE showing of Quinn this season has been one of the greatest surprises in baseball in many years. He has won 15 games for the Athletics and lost only five, and in general effectiveness has ranked among the leading major league pitchers from the start. When Cy Perkins, veteran catcher of the A's was asked the secret of Quinn's success, he replied: "I never knew what easy catching was until I handled Jack Quinn. He has two kinds of spitballs and a fast one. His slow spitter is the most deceptive pitch in the league, I think. It seems as though it is not thrown fast enough to reach the plate. His control is second only to Pennock's. I have seen Quinn throw a ball into a tin cup tacked up on a fence, and he stood the regulation pitcher's distance from the target."

BOXING men who studied Roberto Roberti in his fight with Johnny Risko last week say that for one thing the Italian must learn to avoid wasting energy. He tries to win on sheer aggressiveness and slugging without letting down occasionally to "save something."

Roberto Roberti

Risko slugs, too, but he doesn't keep it up to the point of wearing himself out. He spreads his hard work judiciously over the 10 or 15 rounds sought and picks his opportunities for cutting loose to best advantage.

EVEN Harry Greb, seemingly tireless motion machine that he was, said once that he found it convenient at intervals to "stay away" from his opponent and let his arms dangle at his sides for the purpose of resting them.

"Why tire them by hoisting them for a guard when I don't get hit anyhow?" he asked. "I stay out of the way when I'm not punching.

BATTLING NELSON is another who admits he was not always going at top speed no matter how fiercely he seemed to be fighting. Nelson once confided to Ed Hughes that he had a superstitious regard for odd-numbered rounds and would frequently fight in high on such occasions, and Hughes thinks this explains the fact that he knocked out Joe Gans in 21 and 17 rounds, Dick Hyland in 23, Eddie Hanlon in 19, Young Corbett in nine, etc.

STEVE M'KEEVER, treasurer of the Brooklyn club, declares that he is going to keep up the fight to oust Manager Wilbert Robinson despite the opposition of Secretary Joseph A. Gilleaudeau, who has from the start of the squabble favored the retention of the veteran leader.

Steve McKeever

"Robinson has a contract that carries through 1929," McKeever said. "I repeat, I'd take the money out of my own pocket to get rid of him."

BEFORE he goes through with such an expenditure, however, McKeever would like to put the matter up to the Flatbush fans. Just how this could be done, he does not offer to explain, but it is his expressed opinion that they pay the freight and that if they are not satisfied with the manner in which the team is being handled a change ought to be made as quickly as possible.

M'KEEVER goes further and informs the other directors and stockholders that he stands ready to buy them all out. "I want to buy the Brooklyn club," he said. "The first thing I would do would be to increase the seating capacity of Ebbets Field to 55,000 for baseball games, and for big boxing shows we could seat 45,000 more by utilizing the infield and outfield for extra chairs. That would give Brooklyn a stadium of 100,000 seating capacity. I'd buy new players, too. It would cost $1,000,000, but I'd gladly spend it to give Brooklyn a winning ball club."

Bedford Play Opens

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

BEDFORD SPRINGS, Pa., Aug. 21.—The sectional net scene has shifted from the rugged woodlands of Mountain Lake Park, where last week the Western Maryland championships were run off, to the cultivated verdance of Bedford Springs, where begins the three-day grind for titular tennis honors of Southern Pennsylvania. Pittsburgh racqueters, who gave a good account of themselves throughout the recent competition in the Maryland hills, are scheduled to play here.

Among those listed as certain to be present are Dr. John O'Loughlin, P. A. A. ace and Western Pennsylvania titleholder; S. Jarvis Adams, Jr., runner-up to Gwynn King, of Washington, in the Western Maryland event; John Brown, crack Latrobe driver, who was within two games of triumph over King in the Western Maryland quarter-finals.

O'Loughlin and Adams are carded to pair up in the doubles if Dr. John's illustrious brother, Dave, who has just returned to the Steel City after eight weeks in Michigan, does not journey hither to make the O'Loughlin dual entry a family affair. Brown and Sullivan will likewise cavort together in the two-man milling.

POOCH DONOVAN DIES AT 62

NATICK, Mass., Aug. 21.—(INS.)—William F. (Pooch) Donovan died here today at his home. The former Harvard athletic trainer was 62 years old.

Donovan was stricken with heart disease while with the American Olympic team in Amsterdam last month and was returned home August 12.

Several days ago he took a turn for the worse. Hope for his recovery was abandoned last night and death came at 3:50 a. m. today.

Donovan was born in Natick. As a youth he was recognized as one of the greatest professional sprinters. His brother, Piper, once held the world record for the 100-yard dash.

About 21 years ago Donovan became coach of the Harvard track squad. Later he became trainer of the football and baseball teams.

Beside his wife, Julia, he leaves a daughter, Dorothy Marion Donovan, and two sons, William F., Jr., and John F. Donovan.

Royal Welcome Awaits Tunney In Dublin

DUBLIN, Aug. 21.—Dublin today prepared a royal welcome for Gene Tunney, who will arrive here Thursday. Tunney, now on board the S. S. Mauretania, radioed John McCormack, the Irish tenor, last night, telling of his plans and asking that only a quiet, unostentatious welcome be arranged.

"I regard my visit in the nature of a pilgrimage to a sacred shrine," he said.

Plans for the reception include a procession through the Dublin streets from the depot to the Gresham Hotel.

LOMSKI PUTS KAYO ON SMITH IN FOURTH

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Back in the form that made him a terror among the light heavyweights a few months ago, Leo Lomski, of Aberdeen, Wash., knocked out Georgie Smith, of Newark, N. J., in the fourth round of a 10-round match at Dexter Park last night.

The Pacific Coast slugger went after Smith at the bell and battered the New Jerseyite from pillar to post until the final blow—a hard left to the chin—after 50 seconds of fighting in the fourth round.

BATTLER BEATEN

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Aug. 21.—(AP.)—Battling Levinsky, former light heavyweight champion, lost a decision in 10 rounds here last night to Tony Youkonis, local Lithuanian heavyweight. Youkonis weighed 198 and Levinsky 184.

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

Greater Profit Anticipated from Westinghouse Airbrake. South Penn Dividend Reflects Advance.

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

WESTINGHOUSE AIR BRAKE COMPANY is expected to report substantially greater earnings for the third quarter of this year than were shown in the first and second quarters.

The buying of railroad equipment has increased. The forge department is operating at capacity. Automotive brakes have been moving in good volume.

THE company failed to earn its dividend requirements in the first half of 1928. Earnings in the first quarter were equivalent to 45 cents a share on the capital stock.

In the second quarter they were equal to 48 cents a share. The stock is now on a dividend basis of 50 cents quarterly.

The expected improvement in the third quarter of this year is expected to make up the difference between earnings and dividends, with some margin to spare.

THE declaration of an extra dividend of 25 cents in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents by the South Penn Oil Company reflected improvement in conditions in the oil industry and the expansion of this organization's business through the acquisition of the Pennzoil Company.

This completely rounded out South Penn's activities from the production of crude oil to the distribution of gasoline and lubricating oils at retail.

It also may have been partly due to the declaration of a dividend of $1.25 a share by the Penn Mex Fuel Company on May 31. South Penn owns 55 per cent of the common stock of Penn Mex Fuel.

THE strength in call money yesterday following the weakness on Wednesday and Thursday leaves the outlook in a puzzling condition. The credit needs for financing the fall movement of crops further serve to complicate the situation.

That there is considerable manipulation in the call loan market is without doubt, and this makes it increasingly difficult to analyze the money outlook.

ONE large company here which had $5,000,000 on loan at call in New York over a month ago was suddenly ordered by its banking connection in New York to withdraw this money.

The organization was told to bring the money back to Pittsburgh and not even to leave it on deposit in New York. The company's dependence on the bank made it imperative to follow the order.

It is easy to see the effect on the call loan market of the control of a large number of such accounts by a few New York bankers.

ALTHOUGH the tightening of money appears to have stopped the expansion of speculative borrowing, there has been no very great reduction in the volume of credit used for stock market purposes.

The increase in the margin requirements and the protracted rise in the prices of stocks has led the speculating portion of the public to the belief that they are too well entrenched to need to worry about their debit balances with the brokers.

ACTUALLY, however, it would not take a great wave of selling to force liquidation of many accounts.

One broker tells me that there is a total lack of appreciation of the fact that debit balances with brokers represent actual debts. People who should be carrying a few hundred shares are carrying a thousand shares.

It is high time that those who are speculating took stock of their finances and decided whether they are in a position to throw additional reserves in to hold stocks to which they are now committed.

STOCKS REACH NEW HIGHS FOR 1928

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(AP.)—The stock market gave an impressive demonstration of strength today as pool operations were resumed on a broad scale in a wide assortment of rails and specialties. Nearly two score issues were elevated to new high levels for the year or longer, on gains ranging from 1 to 9 points. Trading showed a marked expansion in volume.

The market appeared to have thrown off the restraint recently imposed by tight money rates. Call money renewed at 7 per cent, as against 6 yesterday, and held steady at that rate throughout the morning and early afternoon, despite the calling of about $15,000,000 in bank loans. Time money and commercial paper rates held firm.

Operators for the advance concentrated on issues reporting large current earnings, or in which favorable trade developments are pending. Increased attendance and activity at commission houses indicated that they were attracting a larger public following. Short selling was relatively light in volume, although a renewed selling attack against Manhattan Electrical Supply carried that stock down nearly 5 points to 33¾, or nearly 100 points below the record high established a year ago.

Prospects of heavy crop movements this fall stimulated buying of the railroad shares. Texas and Pacific, St. Paul preferred and St. Louis Southwestern all reached new high ground, the first named climbing 7 points. Pere Marquette jumped 5 points and Southern Pacific 2.

Montgomery Ward again was one of the most active features, climbing nearly 9 points to a new top at 201⅞. Sears Roebuck moved up nearly 5 to a new top at 139¾. Commercial Solvents, National Tea, American Smelting, Radio, U. S. Realty, National Biscuit and American Radiator sold 4 to 9 points higher. New 1928 highs included Best & Co., American Can, Paramount Famous Lasky, Union Carbide, Loft, Mathieson Alkali and Otis Steel.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 8 to 17 points under liquidation or re-selling by some recent buyers who were probably influenced by prospects for improving weather in the eastern belt and relatively easy cables.

The decline to 18.40c for December contracts appeared to bring in an increased demand, however, which was believed to be partly for the trade, and the market soon steadied up on covering. Liverpool rallied as prices here advanced and by the end of the first half hour the local market was 26 to 34 points net higher, with October relatively firm.

The advance from the opening decline carried the price of October up to 19.00c, while December sold at 18.92c, with active months generally showing net gains of 32 to 38 points. Near months shorts were covering on the upturn and it was said some short hedges were being transferred to later deliveries. The firmness of the October position helped the tone of the general list. The advance was checked by realizing, however, and reactions left the market at midday comparatively quiet and steady at net advances of 20 to 28 points.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Smelters Sole Copper Feature.

Copper shares as a group failed to respond to American Smelters' advance into new high record territory. There was a little buying of Granby and Calumet & Hecla, but the main body of copper stocks held to a comparatively narrow range. Copper shares have been doing little marketwise recently, even though the Kennecott corporation increased its dividend to the $6 a share annual rate predicted heretofore. One reason is tht there has been little feature to the market for the red metal. Vacation season has kept down the buying, but it is evident the price structure is sound and any good increase in demand probably would cause a stiffening in quotations. All leading copper companies should report excellent earnings for this year, as the average price for the metal for the year promises to be as much as 1½c a pound over that on which the 1927 earnings were computed.

Rights on Greenebaum.

Stockholders of Greenebaum Sons Investment Company will be offered the right to subscribe to 10,000 additional shares at $300 a share in the ratio of one new share for each two now held. At present market levels the rights would be worth in the neighborhood of $150 each. It is proposed to convert the 30,000 shares of $100 par value to be outstanding into 300,000 shares of no-par value. New par value shares would be exchanged in the ratio of ten for one. The no-par shares to receive a $2.00 annual dividend, or at the equivalent rate of the present stock which now pays $20.00 annually. Stockholders will meet September 5 to act on these proposals.

World Wheat Supply Larger.

Material changes in world wheat crop prospects during the last month are shown in Department of Agriculture statement. Indications now are that supply for 1928-29 season will be larger than last season, but that increase in supply will be offset largely by an increase in demand for wheat. Estimates for 22 countries, which supplied 69 per cent of the world's total wheat crop last year indicate production of about 2,420,000,000 bushels, compared with 2,426,000,000 bushels for the same countries last year. Should the larger crop now in prospect in Canada materialize and average yields be obtained in Argentina and Australia the world's supply of wheat for the 1928-29 season would be about 4 per cent larger than last season. Winter wheat production in Canada is estimated at 21,445,000 bushels, against 22,266,000 bushels in 1927. Spring wheat conditions indicate a 1928 crop of about 458,000,000 bushels, compared with an estimate made at this time last year of 417,759,000 bushels.

Participating Bonds.

Participating bonds, in which the holder shares in the profits of a corporation, are coming into increasing favor, in the opinion of J. A. Reichart, president of Clarence Hodson and Company, who points out that the bondholder of today is not always satisfied with a fixed rate of return when he furnishes a material part of the working capital of a corporation. Participating bonds have been an instrument of finance for many decades. The same principle is used by the large insurance companies, when dividends are paid to policyholders. The holder of a participating bond receives a certificate of profit participation which entitles him to a pro rata share of the company's earnings above the amount required to meet interest requirements on the issue. It has been found, according to Mr. Reichart, that the profit-sharing plan draws many investors to the ranks of bondholders who are not satisfied with the limited income of the ordinary bond. The good-will established by sharing profits with these bondholders is frequently reflected in purchases of subsequent issues of the corporation.

Corn Products.

Interests associated with all past movements in Corn Products believe that that stock is in for a "killing." They look on the huge estimates of the corn crop as an important factor in connection with an expected movement. Yesterday December corn sold 18 cents below the price of September corn, or at 73 cents a bushel. The bullish interests in Corn Products are positive in the opinion that the company will increase its earnings to such an extent in the last quarter of the year as to make its earnings pass all previous records for the full year.

Warner Brothers.

Warner Brothers Pictures has made application to list the B stock, now traded in on the Curb Market, on the New York Exchange. There is a report that the A shares probably will be called when the B stock is listed on the big board. Governors of the exchange are due to act on the listing tomorrow. It is estimated that $150,000,000 is being spent for installation work for talking movies throughout the country. Western Electric, and therefore American Telephone, get most benefit therefrom, with Westinghouse Electric also reported sharing in the business. H. M. Warner, president of Warner Brothers, announced the Vitagraph studio in Brooklyn will be opened this fall for producing Vitagraph talking pictures. The Vitagraph plant will resume production for the first time since it was acquired by Warner in 1925.

LIST FAILS TO RESPOND TO UPTURNS IN NEW YORK

Trading continued quiet on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today and price fluctuations were confined to fractions in most instances.

The early market was dull and uninteresting, with scattered transactions involving small lots of miscellaneous issues. There was no concentration of activity in any of the recent leaders, nor was there much reflection here of the strong buying in Westinghouse Electric and Columbia Gas noted in the New York market.

Both Westinghouse and Columbia got away strong at the start of business. Accompanying the strength in Westinghouse was a fairly wide buying movement involving other high grade electrical issues. General Electric and Allis Chalmers were in steady demand. The advance in Columbia was a further reflection of the rumors that the Mellon interests are considering a program of consolidation which may tie Columbia up with Public Service of New Jersey and United Gas Improvement, the big Philadelphia utility. The latter was consistently strong on the New York Curb. Ultimately the grouping may include the Consolidated Gas-Brooklyn Edison properties, in fact, the Street was discussing that possibility today.

There was very little trading in the fuel stocks. Lone Star Gas changed hands in small amounts around 52, while Arkansas common was unchanged at 3.

American Window Glass Machine was off a half point on its opening sale at 18½ and had a further decline to 18 on subsequent sales.

In the bond department a block of $20,000 Monongahela River Coal 6s sold at 107½, an advance of ¾ over the last previous sale.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

Dealings for fruit and vegetables at the local wholesale produce district were liberal today, with the quotations about unchanged.

Poultry supplies were moderate, with the market about steady, demand fair and quotations unchanged.

The egg and cheese markets were steady. Butter was firm. No change was made in the quotations on these markets.

Car lot supplies were liberal, a total of 470 cars being on track. Included in the arrivals were 11 cars of apples, 3 cabbage, 11 cantaloupes, 3 celery, 5 grapes, 2 lemons, 5 lettuce, 10 onions, 2 oranges, 11 peaches, 6 pears, 31 potatoes, 9 sweet potatoes, 13 watermelons, 1 prunes, 1 peas and 7 tomatoes.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The raw sugar market was quiet again early today and no sales were reported. The action of the futures market seemed to check new buying by refiners, who apparently are supplied for the present at least and offerings of sugars at further concessions or on the basis of 4.14 duty paid found no response. It was reported that yesterday an outport refiner bought 20,000 bags of Cuban for September shipment at 4.18c delivered.

Liquidation of September contracts and transfer to later months comprised most of the morning's business in raw sugar futures. Prices at midday showed net losses of 2 to 4 points. Near months had the maximum declines. Continued inactivity in the spot market seemed to check aggressive buying, although the late months held relatively steady. Cables from London said the market there was stagnant and some of the early selling here was believed to be for European account.

In refined prices were unchanged at 5.65c for fine granulated with a good withdrawal demand.

To Employees of the Pennsylvania Railroad

THE recent announcement that the Pennsylvania Railroad would spend $45,000,000 for improvements in the Pittsburgh district, is of far-reaching significance to you as well as every wage-earner in the district. It is certain that a good portion of that sum will be paid out in salaries to employees of the railroad. Another large portion will reach, indirectly, the employees of many Pittsburgh industries from which the railroad will buy supplies and equipment required in the new construction work.

The Mellon National Bank has had the pleasure of serving the Pennsylvania Railroad for 25 years. These have been years of constructive cooperation between the bank and its client.

The Mellon National Bank offers the same friendly, helpful service to employees of this great railroad. Your account is welcome here and all the facilities of the bank are available to you.

Regardless of the size of the deposit, you are cordially invited to talk it over with the men in charge of New Accounts, just inside the Fifth Avenue entrance. You will find a checking account a great convenience and a great help in budgeting your expenditures.

Tell Postmaster General We Want New Air Route

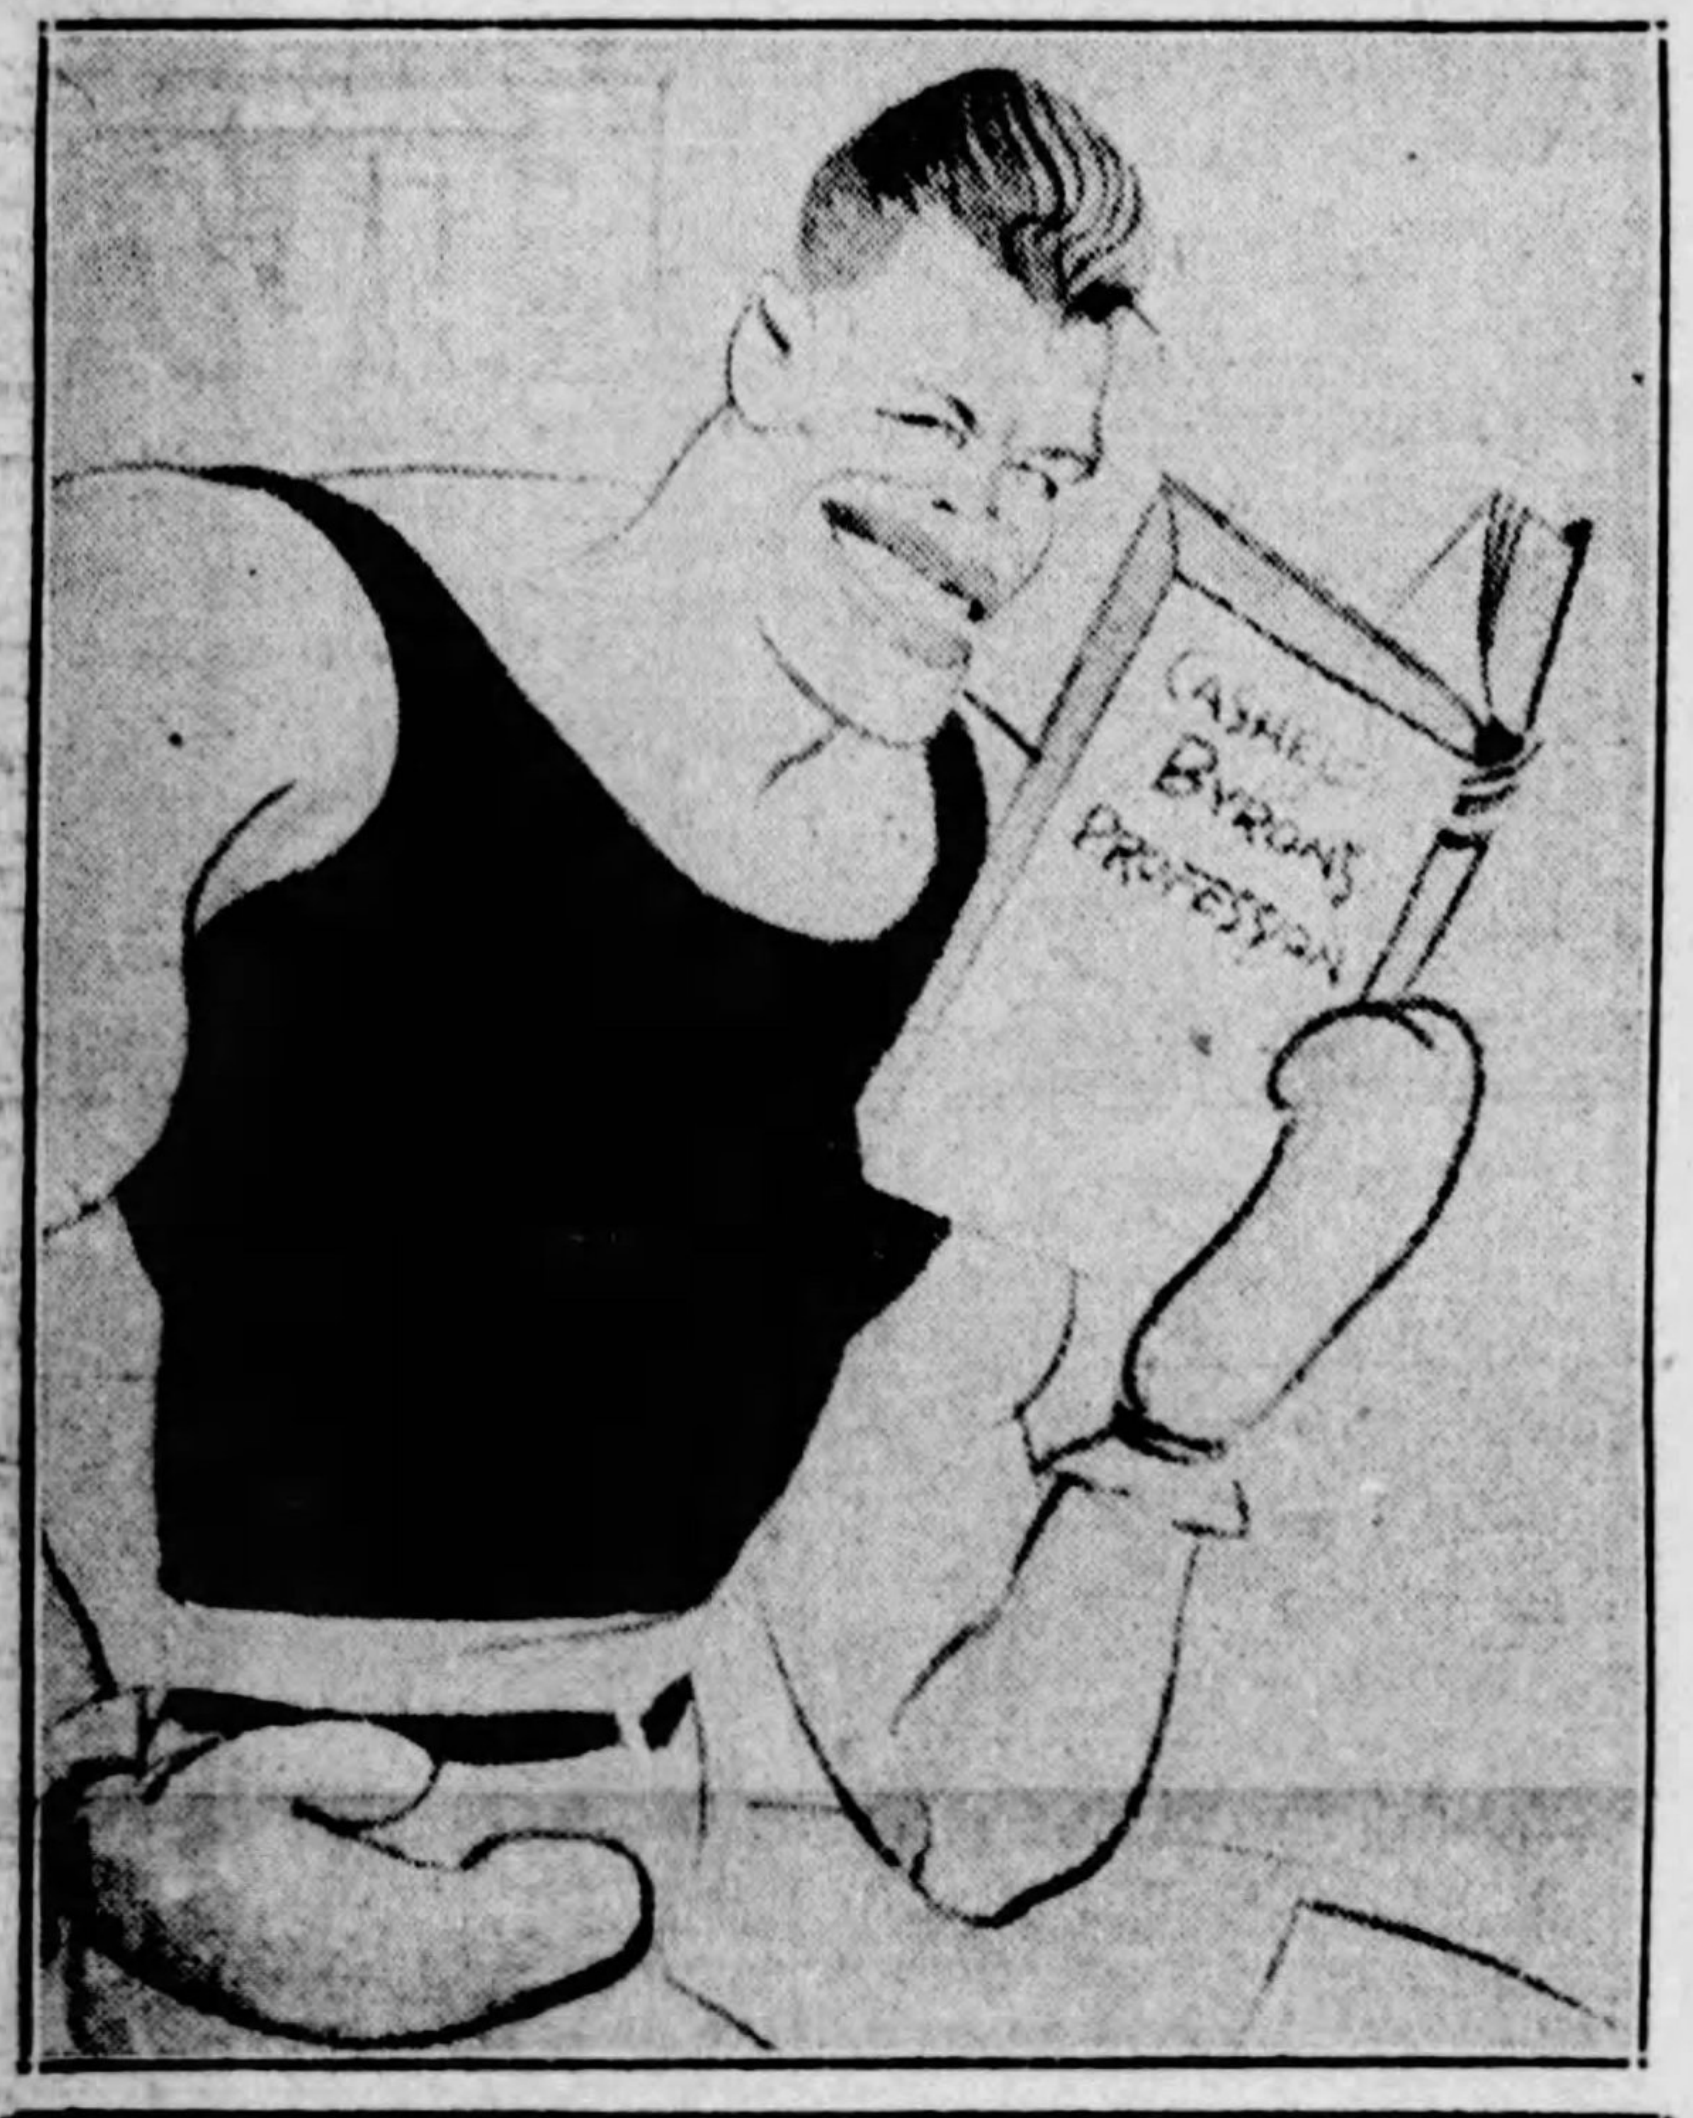
Every new link in the rapidly-growing airmail chain in the United States is reason for general enthusiasm. Airmail expedites business and prosperity. There is reason for local and particular enthusiasm in Pittsburgh over the proposal to connect Pittsburgh and Washington by the way of Baltimore.

This new link will save much time and distance. At present airmail sent from Washington must go first to New York before heading west. The short cut from Washington to Pittsburgh by the way of Baltimore has advantages then that are obvious. The present air line between Pittsburgh and Cleveland would be enhanced by the new proposed route to join us by airmail with the nation's capital.

While the postmaster general is in a receptive mood for the new line he will take no steps until assured there is a real demand for the new route. Let Pittsburgh tell the postmaster general in enthusiastic fashion we want to be on the new route. Let our shout be so loud that Baltimore's and Cleveland's will sound like just an echo.

He Really DOES Read

And He KNOWS His Shakespeare.



A SCHOLAR BOXER.

Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion of the world retired, and leaving the field to others, recently lectured on Shakespeare, his life and works, before students of Yale University. He was invited by Prof. Phelps, whose specialty is literature.

Many supposed that Tunney, like a majority of us, know a few lines of Shakespeare, just as he might know a few quotations from the Talmud, a few verses of Moody and Sankey's hymns, and half a dozen maxims from La Rochefoucauld.

But that isn't it, as you shall learn.

TUNNEY REALLY HAS STUDIED SHAKESPEARE, AND KNOWS HIS WORKS.

This is how the facts came out:

There was a luncheon given for Gene Tunney, who has just retired from the ring, and for Commander Richard Byrd, who is just starting for the South Pole, having flown his airship over the North Pole.

At the luncheon, beside Gene Tunney and Commander Byrd, were, among others, C. V. Bob, who is one of Commander Byrd's strongest backers in the South Pole flight; Richard Hoyt, of Hayden, Stone, interested in all sorts of things worth while; Jock Whitney, son of the late Payne Whitney, a friend of Commander Byrd and an admirer of Tunney; John Oliver La Gorce, of the National Geographical Society; James Brush, of the Equitable Trust Company; Bernard F. Gimbel and Sam Pryor, Jr.

Tunney was congratulated on his wisdom in retiring, taking Old Time by the forelock, instead of allowing Old Time to take him, Mr. Tunney, by the back of the neck and throw him out of the game as Time always does.

Mr. Gimbel said to Tunney, "Your specialty is Shakespeare. Gene, you know, he says 'Time hath, my Lord, a wallet at his back.' It's a good thing to remember that Time hath also a WALLOP and always uses it when the time comes."

"Oh, yes," said Tunney, "I know that quotation well, it's from Troilus and Cressida," and Tunney went on to complete the quotation. Look it up for yourself in Act III, Scene 3.

Some time when you meet Mr. Tunney with his literary friend, Thornton Wilder, on their walking tour through Italy, and north over the Alps, greet him with any familiar Shakespearean quotation you like, and he will finish the quotation for you, just as he did for Mr. Gimbel with his "Time hath, my Lord, a wallet at his back."

This picture is from "The Graphic," important British paper. The editor calls Tunney "an authority on Shakespeare and Bernard Shaw."

Mr. Tunney does not pretend to be an AUTHORITY. But he is intellectually interested in important things—and that's the main point.

When he sailed for Europe this month it was Tunney's second trip abroad. He was asked, when he applied for his passport, "Have you had a passport to Europe previously?"

Tunney replied: "No, when I went the last time I didn't need any passport."

That was the time when Tunney went over, as a fighter in the Marines, practiced boxing with other soldiers, and thus became the world's heavyweight champion.

Some of the low-brow sporting fraternity do not approve of Tunney. They think he is too high-brow. He may be, but he was not too high-brow to go over to France, take his share of the risk, and do his share of the fighting, while some of the low-brows, more cautious, were hiding under the bed or safely teaching boxing "to our boys" in camps at home.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Three beautiful New York girls of prominent families have been disabled for nearly a year as the result of efforts to be thin. Subsisting on a diet of acid fruits, all were victims of prolonged attacks of inflammatory rheumatism.

The craze to keep thin exists chiefly among girls between 17 and 24 years of age. Doctors say at no period in their lives are they in such need of health-giving food, and as a result a large percentage drift into wasting maladies.

Private sanitariums are said to be filled with young girls suffering from malnutrition as a result of enforcing a rigid diet. A noted psychologist announces the only object of this starvation is the hope of being attractive and catching a husband.

He further avers the majority, aside from defeating their own purposes, invite chronic invalidism. It is his contention 90 per cent of men are actually repulsed by unnatural thinness. He points to the fact that in the crop of June brides more than two-thirds of the New York quota were plump.

The craze to reduce has fallen heaviest on restaurants. The luncheon for the average girl today consists of a few sprigs of lettuce or a nibble or so of toast. The evening meal is also ordered just as sparingly. This is largely responsible for inflation of cafe prices.

As an indication of the avoidance of sweets, the consumption of sugar fell off 500,000 tons in a year. And scarcely any modern girl will think of eating potatoes. There is one record of a show girl torturing herself so with libations of raw vinegar that she went into a quick decline.

Astute physicians seem agreed a careful diet has value, but a constant and enforced hunger is more destructive even than over-eating. Another observation has been noted. There have been girls who starve themselves and grow so weak they resort to alcoholic stimulants, and in some cases drugs.

A Park avenue lady gave an outdoor circus for a group of anaemic and spindly-legged children from the tenements. Among entertainers were three clowns, long out of work, and two Italians with performing monkeys. At the conclusion of the affair she offered each a large sum and all refused the money.

"We are not that poor," said the spokesman stiffly.

Despite its sangfroid, Broadway has few cosmopolities. The globe-trotting worldlings are found in the exclusive clubs a few blocks eastward. There are innumerable roadway sophisticates who have never been abroad or as far west as Chicago. They were brought up to believe Broadway is the high spot of the world and after they gravitated there had no desire to see what was beyond. To them, any other city is only camping out. They cannot believe Louisville, Ky., ladies are just as smartly dressed or that the wise cracks in front of a Des Moines barber shop are just as hot as those pulled in front of the Palace. Indeed Broadway's most famous wisecracker, Joe Frisco, is from Des Moines. The Broadway-wise are the folk who really give the street its provincialism. And many of the lookers-on pains in the neck.

It is a custom for important business men these days to have their business so geared they can leave it flat for six months without making any change in its efficiency. That seems a tremendous achievement to writers. If they want anything done they must do it themselves. And even then it rarely amounts to shucks.

* * *

New York has many widows—the sort you imagine had a little left over after selling the boarding house—who come to town expecting some adventure out of the ordinary. They are seen dining alone night after night in cheaper restaurants, apparently lonely and thoroughly disillusioned.

* * *

"How would you like," circularizes a haberdashery, "to wear scarves from the same silk as those made for John Barrymore?"

It would be no especial kick in the pants, so long as you ask.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Earth Movements

THE geologist wanders over the earth and wonders how most people can be so indifferent to the plain signs, which he sees everywhere, of irresistible and magnificent forces continually playing over the broad face which our planet presents to the sky, and transforming its expressive features. To him the earth appears to heave and groan, rather in ecstacy than in torment, for the life of a planet thrills in the outgushing of volcanic lava and the shiver of earthquakes.

Lately Professor Bailey Willis, president of the Geological Society of America, has recounted in an address to fellow geologists some of the fruits of his observations on all sides of the globe, and listening to him one can perceive something of the delight arising from such studies—a little inhabitant of this great globe (for after all it is great to our eyes), strolling over its surface, eager with intellectual curiosity to find out how it is made and why it is at once so quiet and so restless; examining the mountains to see if they are still growing, as some are, or are only wearing away, as others are, to level the land and fill the sea, and make room for a new geological dispensation.

He looks over the eastern shore of the Asiatic continent and sees how Japan was formed, and out of what mighty contention of horizontal thrusts and vertical risings, of complexly folded Paleozoic sediments, and "injected tongues of granite," its central spine in the northern island has emerged. He sees how "an active force had come from the Pacific" and arched up a Paleozoic mass. A Paleozoic "geosyncline" was followed by a Cretaceous one, and that by a Tertiary one. "The fourth, or Pliocene trough," he says, "has not yet been folded."

So earth history as well as human history is still in the making; only the one takes such long steps that the other cannot even trot along by its side, and men are only able through the magnifying power of the scientific imagination to understand how the stage on which they act their little parts is heaving, sinking, cracking and bursting with the unceasing strain of geologic forces.

One does not wonder that Japan is frequently disturbed by earthquakes when he reads Professor Willis' description:

"The presence of folds on echelon, especially in the newer Japanese arcs, points to their lying in the shear zone between two rounded disc-like blocks—the one under the Pacific and east of Northern Japan, the other under the Asiatic continent. The rotation of both blocks in a clock-wise direction has developed the shearing and folding en echelon between them. The location of granite intrusions in Northern Japan was determined by tension."

This idea of vast subterranean "discs" rotating, one might say like stupendous millstones, and wrenching and heaving the face of the earth, reappears in what Professor Willis says regarding the stepped "faults," dipping east along the eastern front of our own Sierra Nevadas. He considers them as superficial slides into the eastern basin, "the tilting of the mountain having been accomplished by rotation of the mountain block on a rounded base by a horizontal force from the west."

Meditating on these things, one may easily overpaint the picture of subterranean conditions that they suggest; for after all most of the inhabited part of the earth is a pretty quiet abode for short-lived creatures, though there is an element of suspense in Willis's opinion that destructive earthquakes are not the result of slight movements on normal faults, but rather of "the elastic spring of rocks from energy stored up in them through years of compression." The compression arises mostly from horizontal thrusting.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

PEOPLE ask the silliest questions when they don't mean to. You know somebody that asks if it's hot enough for you, even yet. And I've heard of guys that would visit somebody in the hospital and ask, "Are you under the weather?"

Well, there was a workman that fell off a tall building in New York. He was riveting steel or something, and accidentally landed in the street. He crashed through the top of an automobile and part of the bottom of the same car. The fellow that owned the car came along just then, and when he found this guy just wedged in between the machinery, he says, "Say, man, have an accident?"

"No, thanks, old top," says the workman, "I just had one."

Watch Your Foundation

IF YOU want to succeed in anything get at the heart of the matter.

There is always a point about which all else revolves.

There is always an underlying simple fact which, if rightly understood and acted upon, turns the trick.

Things run true according to type.

Fish can't live on dry land and birds would drown in the sea.

You can build according to the foundation under the house, and the great thing is to find out whether you have sand or rock underneath the proposed construction.

The great point is to have a sense of fundamentals.

Get accustomed to sorting your knowledge with this thought in mind.

What is essential and what is superficial.

Often the surface matter attracts more attention than the quality of the material.

Don't waste time with trimmings when the quality of the foundation determines its life.

What sort of a foundation have you builded?

The Rhyming Optimist

Song of the Twilight

RIDING into the twilight,
  Into the fading West,
Into the dying splendor
  Over the low hills' crest,
We merge with this transient beauty,
  One with Earth's paling light,
Riding into the regions
  Made for the sea and night.
Riding into the twilight,
  Leaving life's passion and pain,
Watching the night descending
  Over the coastal plain,
Riding into the twilight,
  Casting away old cares,
Loosing the bonds Earth fashions,
  Gladly the spirit fares!

Isn't It So?

Silence is golden in spite of the loud speakers.

Great Passages from the Bible

The First Temptation

(Genesis 3)

NOW the serpent was more subtil than any beast of the field which the Lord God had made. And he said unto the woman, Yea, hath God said, Ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden?

And the woman said unto the serpent, We may eat of the fruit of the trees of the garden:

But of the fruit of the tree which is in the midst of the garden, God hath said, Ye shall not eat of it, neither shall ye touch it, lest ye die.

And the serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not surely die:

For God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil.

And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat, and gave also unto her husband with her; and he did eat.

And the eyes of them both were opened, and they knew that they were naked; and they sewed fig leaves together, and made themselves aprons.

And they heard the voice of the Lord God walking in the garden in the cool of the day: and Adam and his wife hid themselves from the presence of the Lord God amongst the trees of the garden.

And the Lord God called unto Adam, and said unto him, Where art thou?

And he said, I heard thy voice in the garden, and I was afraid, because I was naked; and I hid myself.

And he said, Who told thee that thou wast naked? Hast thou eaten of the tree, whereof I commanded thee that thou shouldest not eat?

And the man said, The woman thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat.

And the Lord God said unto the woman, What is this that thou hast done. And the woman said, The serpent beguiled me, and I did eat.

And the Lord God said unto the serpent, Because thou hast done this, thou art cursed above all cattle, and above every beast of the field; upon thy belly shalt thou go, and dust shalt thou eat all the days of thy life:

And I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel.

Unto the woman he said, I will greatly multiply thy sorrow and thy conception; in sorrow thou shalt bring forth children; and thy desire shall be to thy husband, and he shall rule over thee.

And unto Adam he said, Because thou hast hearkened unto the voice of thy wife, and hast eaten of the tree, of which I commanded thee, saying, Thou shalt not eat of it: cursed is the ground for thy sake; in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life.

Thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee; and thou shalt eat the herb of the field;

In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return.

And Adam called his wife's name Eve; because she was the mother of all living.

Unto Adam also and to his wife did the Lord God make coats of skins, and clothed them.

And the Lord God said, Behold, the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil: and now, lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live for ever:

Therefore the Lord God sent him forth from the garden of Eden, to till the ground from whence he was taken.

So he drove out the man; and he placed at the east of the garden of Eden Cherubims, and a flaming sword which turned every way, to keep the way of the tree of life.

Gunmen's Peril

THERE is trouble in store for the Chicago gunmen. There seems to be a law in Chicago that no gunman can be arrested for murder—if it isn't law, it is the tradition.

But there is no law protecting a gunman who fails to make an income tax return on his earnings. The Chicago racketeers, it seems, have neglected to file their schedule of earnings with the internal revenue collector, as:

Schedule K783½ (add to section F071, subtract from section G839D).

To "taking for a ride" six aldermen, $13,000.

So now the United States Treasury Department is going to have the gunmen jailed for that oversight.

Maybe there is some sense in the Income Tax Law after all.

Vacation

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

Everybody ought to have a vacation.

Keeping everlastingly at it brings success. It also brings stagnation.

It would be better to lay off once in a while as you go along than to lay off permanently pretty soon.

The most efficient people who can hit the line the hardest are those that can let go the most completely.

The art of being at your best most of the time is also the art of relaxing some of the time.

Vacation ought to be arranged if possible so that our activities will be entirely different from the usual ones. President Coolidge sets a good example of this. He goes back to the primitive art of fishing and country life, the furthest possible removed from his highly complicated job as President.

If you are a city worker get some old clothes and go to the country. Lie on the ground, bask in the sun, bathe in the water and give nature a chance.

No matter how much we are highly developed souls we are basically bodies. We may be thinking animals, but we are animals. We are not disembodied spirits.

The thing from which we need most a vacation is worry or care.

The most highly productive land needs an occasional spell of lying fallow. The colt needs to run out in the pasture and kick his heels once in awhile. All animal creation needs periods of repose.

The ability to do nothing effectively and perfectly is not a sign of weakness, but an indication of strength.

Good sleepers are the healthy people. It is abnormal and diseased and defective people that have insomnia.

It was said of Napoleon that he could lie down any time of the day or night and go to sleep immediately.

All of us are the better off who take refuge once in awhile in the normal and health animalities. Charles Spurgeon said that excessive spirituality is akin to sensuality.

So we don't want to be excessively good all the time. Not that our recess should be sinful, but occasionally we should be non-moral, not immoral. We shouldn't string ourselves up to the highest pitch all the time.

When Esop was found playing with boys he was asked why he, a grown man, did so. He replied by saying that a bow shot better if occasionally it were unstrung.

Grown people as well as youths should learn how to play.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

QUITE a number of New York cafes have printed on the dinner checks: "Please do not tip waiters. They are given 10 per cent of the amount of this check. They are liable to instant discharge for accepting tips."

Yet a very nice looking woman of about 45, who eats at one of these places, insists upon tipping both waiters and bus boys every night. I see her slip a dollar bill under the hand when they put dishes on her table. She sits at the end table near the door where the head waiter can't see what she is doing.

Protests from the scared waiters are of no avail. The lady seems to get great joy out of her trick.

Ethel Barrymore, at the theater with her young son, who is very attentive. She wears a very pale lavender velvet evening gown, simply made. There is always an elegance about Ethel.

A lady sees William Slavens McNutt at the opening of a play and he greets her effusively, shaking her hand and smiling like a May morning.

The lady remarks to her friends that Mr. McNutt is such a very amiable, delightful person. Always so cordial when he sees his old friends.

The next day she met him on the street and told him how happy he looked the night before, and he said: "Oh, were you there? I didn't see you!"

Mary Garden to be married!

She has chosen a young Frenchman. A frank confession as to what was wrong with the other 4,047 suitors would make interesting reading. In this day of matrimonial upsets it might be invaluable to those women who didn't know who not to take.

Two girls in the Washington Square Book Shop. They looked at pictures of authors on the walls. One of them said "There is Thornton Wilder. He's fascinating. He is going to take a walking trip through Europe with Gene Tunney."

"Whose she," said the other girl, "His wife?"

Gilda Gray's husband is seeking an annulment of their marriage.

Suggestion for a best seller: "Four Years With a Shimmy Shaker."

Dr. Nellie B. Cooper, of Memphis, says that you can influence St. Peter to open the gates to beautiful souls, but you can't hold husbands if your nose shines and you look bedraggled. At least you can't hold men who "Have eyes for other women."

From the money spent on cosmetics each year the women are holding somebody. Divorce statistics wouldn't exactly indicate it's the husbands.
